ARRIVAL OF THE AFRICA.

Birth of Another British Princess.

The Conspiracies Against the French Emperor.

Mediation of France and England Between Mexico and Spain.

Instructions of the British Commissioner to China.

The Concessions to be Exacted from the Chinese Emperor.

Great Defensive Preparations of the Chinese.

The Refusal of the United States to Join the Alliance Against China.

Cotton Quiet—Breadstuffs Advancing—Consols 93.

The British Mail steamer Africa, from Liverpool at 8 o'clock on the afternoon of Saturday, the 18th instant, arrived at this port yesterday.

The Africa arrived out 7½ P. M., 12th.

The steamship City of Baltimore arrived out 5 P. M., 14th.

The Columbia, of the Canada Line, sailed from Liverpool on the morning of the 16th, for Quebec.

The United States Mail steamer Arago arrived at Southampton P. M. Friday, 17th.

The only two items of English news by this arrival are the birth of another Princess (making the ninth Royal infant) and the ceremonies of laying the foundation of the Free Library and Museum, presented to the citizens of Liverpool by WILLIAM BROWN, M. P.

There was quite a lull in politics, awaiting the reassembling of Parliament.

From France the substance of the intelligence is that the Emperor proposes to visit Algeria after the visit to Paris of the Grand Duke CONSTANTINE; also, that the French Republicans intend to put up CARNOT, CAVAIGNAC, and others as candidates for the Legislative chamber. Reports continue to circulate of conspiracies against the Emperor's life, but they are mostly extravagant, as for instance that he was to be shot in his box at the opera.

It is reported, from Brussels, that the Four Powers, being wearied of the delay in the Neufchâtel affair, are about to draw up terms of their own, and call on Prussia and Switzerland to assent at once.

From Madrid we have a reaffirmation of the statement that England and France are actively mediating between Spain and Mexico. Prussia is mediating between the Western Powers and Naples.

Sardinia has proposed to the Pope to resume negotiations with Rome on the terms of a Cardinal's hat for Archbishop FRANSONI, and a concordat for Sardinia generally.

Wurtemberg has signed a concordat with Rome.

The elections for the Divans in the Principalities have commenced, with a prospect of a majority favorable to the union of the territories. The claim by Turkey for a restitution of Persian territory is to be submitted by Persia to the arbitration of France and England.

The treaty between England and Persia had arrived at Teheran, but five or six weeks would elapse before ratification.

The Portuguese are fitting out an expedition against the Chinese at Macao.

The draft of a treaty of commerce has been agreed between Austria and Prussia, and said to contain the same provisions as the treaty between Persia and the United States.

Herr VON SCHMELZ has resigned as Danish minister of Foreign Affairs.

LONDON, Friday night, April 17, 1857.

The intelligent British public having been told by the British intelligence par excellence, that a long pull, a strong pull, and a pull altogether would place PALMERSTON on the pinnacle of power, and therefore England in the Happy Valley, the aforesaid public did give the long pull, the strong pull, and the pull altogether—placed PALMERSTON on the pinnacle of power, and itself in the Happy Valley! Oh, dear me! the Slough of Despond. Who says so? Who but one? There wouldn't be no use in anybody else saying it, for none other would be believed. And this is that one—the omniscient oracle aforesaid. Yes, the Times of this morning, after having had everything its own way for nobody knows how long back, coolly acquaints the public that "the condition of the Money Market seems more perplexing than ever." "Seems, Madam? Nay, it is," as Hamlet had it, and as the British stereoscope-makers who have bought TOM THUMB now say all day long, and at night by illumination, in their advertisements. Why the condition of the monetary world should be perplexing nobody knows. Of course if anybody did know, it wouldn't be perplexing, and there would be no use in talking about it. But now the wonder is that there should be any wonder in it. However, there is no use in wondering at the wonder. The thing is, what is to be done? What is the cure for the despondency that now afflicts us? Worms? Good gracious! what can worms have to do with money? Everything. At least, so says the money oracle, and there is no gainsaying that. Yes, worms are to regenerate the British lion. This is the way of it: If the sickly silkworm recover its appetite, if it nibble its mulberry with its antique gusto, and digest the same with the regularity it ought, then silk will be plentiful, then profits will be remunerative, then the three per cents will be healthy, and the meteor flag of England, which has braved a thousand years the battle and the Yeha, will be the oriflamme of everything that's meritorious, magnanimous, miraculous. But let the worm continue the nasty little hungry, unsatisfied, unfattening grub it now is, and there will be no silk, no profit, no felicity, no nothing that is anything anybody cares about. Wise and philosophic Great Britain! Envy and admiration of surrounding nations! Giant-brained Bull has always a maggot in his head; and the maggot is always honey-combing that constitution which he tells the world defies the sharpest of old files, the tooth of Time. A few years ago a slug in the potato sufficed to turn up side down and inside out that Empire on which the sun never sets; and now it depends upon a caterpillar whether the Empire is to be worth shuting upon much longer.

Oddly enough, however, but quite characteristic of our Anglo-Saxon idiosyncracy, while we are bemoaning and deploring our own condition to ourselves, wringing our hands before our faces, and enjoying that luxury beloved by grumblers, asking each other if we are not the most miserable people on the face of the earth, we are exulting in the assumed far greater debasement of the people—that people being our esteemed and respected ally, the French; for thus we are true to that maxim of ROCHEFOUCAULD, which says that in proportion to our intimacy with a friend, so do we relish his misfortunes. It appears, however, that the French are by no means disposed to be grateful for our commiseration. The articles in our journals on the decline of the population of France, and the strictures on the presumed causes leading to that decline, have been resented furiously by our polite neighbors, who point to our own admissions of the wholesale inoculation and hideous abominations of all sorts which abound in this beautiful Babylon of ours, portending a depravity that admits of no other purgation than that which befell the Cities of the Plain. We retort; they rejoin; we reply again; and then—conclusive argument—they asseverate that the rationale of all our irritation is jealousy of French valor, French skill, French fortune, French everything, at Sebastopol! There's a charming entente cordiale for you! There's a spectacle of philanthropy and reciprocal respect between the two great Western nations of the old world—brothers in arms, arts literature, civilization, fiddledeedee, and so forth. But, if the fury of the Gauls be new what it is, what will it not be when the inflammation is superadded of a most poisonous frothy rattlesnake article in the blue and yellow, just out—the Edinburgh Review. This once famous and still formidable publication, respected for its former service in the cause of the commonwealth, and now dreaded because of its being the tool of the Palmerston dynasty, takes up this ticklish theme of the census, and pursues it root and branch, through all its ramifications, the upshot being that the Louis Napoleon regime is proved to be a fraud, a delusion, and a snare, a tyranny as stupid as it is atrocious, hated, ridiculed, and despised by every man in France of the least character, and out of France of the least penetration, and depending solely on the ignorant peasantry, who, not knowing what to do with their universal suffrages, intrust it to one man, who uses it to coerce all the rest to his low and vulgar aggrandisement. Is not this also delightful, testifying to the solidarité of that Palmerstonian Bonapartism on which the affairs of this poor old worn-out world of ours turn?

All this is sufficiently bewildering to the oldest observer of the signs and portents of the passing time, and is indeed amazing beyond all utterance to the universal Herd, who, "thinking what o hers think, fear to think" at all. Our press and public are in a most distracted state about the meaning, the double meaning, of every single thing they hear and see, and don't hear and see.

The refusal of your Government to join in the tripartite alliance against China is thus significantly animaverted on.

"This is to have a bad name, and to deserve it. To Lord Palmerston himself, it is doubtless a matter of little consequence, rather a subject for chuckling and congratulation, that he should thus be tabooed by the most advanced and advancing nation of the new world; that our own flesh and blood, the descendants of our forefathers, should thus, in the eyes of all mankind, repudiate association in our enterprises. It is the English people who are the sufferers: first in the disgrace of being thus 'cut' by the Americans; secondly, in the positive loss to which they will be put by this refusal of co operation. It is impossible to say that they do not deserve their fate, for scarcely a year has elapsed since the same minister who has now brought it upon them, very nearly succeeded in provoking a war between England and the United States, and did actually afford President PIERCE a pretext for suspending negotiations. Had the Government of the United States fallen into the trap laid for them they would have given a retrospective sanction to PALMERSTON's proceedings, of which his parasites would not have been slow to take advantage.—The Emperor of the French too will have received another proof of the inconvenience of attending that English alliance which he so much cherishes. He is repudiated by America for no other reason than that he comes in company with the arch disturber of the peace of the world, although in consenting to join him in the proposed Chinese treaty he undoubtedly must have done so with a desire to rescue his ally from disgrace by convesting a merciless outrage into a combined step in the march of civilization. Although we shall regret the decision of the United States we can scarcely condemn it. The cause of civilization will suffer should the combined operations in China become incomplete through the secession of one of the most powerful States in the world; and the English people will feel the mortification of knowing that this catastrophe will have been incurred through the evil repute of a minister whom the rest of the world regard, though erroneously, as possessing their respect and unbounded confidence."

The foregoing appears in the Pecilite morning organ, and expresses the views of many who do not hold Pecilite opinions on other points. PALMERSTON's own organ pursues a very bellicose strain indeed about Yankee notions of things in general, particularly as regards Cuba, which it drags in apropos of nothing whatever, but merely to round some periods of epigrammatic smartness in reference to the fate, or supposed fate, of fillibusterism in Central America. But there is no question that, added to the cavalier treatment of Honduras and Mosquito business, this refusal of all participation in the Chinese matter is felt as a heavy blow to the Palmerstonians, who, however are obliged to disguise their mortification as they best may, it being their instructions to cry up their patron as the pet of the whole human race, which he undoubtedly would be were he the best man alive.

The importance of the mission on which the British Plenipotentiary to China is entering, renders the antecedents of the gentlemen about to accompany him a matter of considerable interest, the more so as most of them, as well as Lord ELGIN himself, have at some time or other had some political connection with the United States. They appear to be exceedingly well chosen; and, incortuable as the objects of the mission are, and notwithstanding Lord PALMERSTON's assertion that it was his intention to support Sir JOHN BOWRING, it may be readily surmised that the latter gentleman, and his associates will have but a small share in the transactions contemplated, whatever they may be. The chief Secretary is Lord ELGIN's brother, Hon F. W. BRUCE, who, though two years younger than his noble relative, (who is himself but forty-six,) has had considerable diplomatic experience in various parts of the world. In 1842 he was with Lord ASHBURTON at Washington, during the discussion and settlement of the Oregon boundary question. From 1844 to 1846 he was Colonial Secretary at Hong Kong, where he acquired experience that cannot fail to be of great value on the present occasion. He next spent two years as Consul-General and Chargé d'Affaires in Bolivia, and a like period in a similar capacity at Monte Video. In 1850 he was transferred to Alexandria, as Consul-General in Egypt, with a salary of £1,600 per annum, being rather more than double the sum allowed by the United States as a remuneration of an officer of the same rank in the same place. The first attaché is Mr. D. CAMERON, formerly attaché at Berne, (Switzerland,) and more recently at Copenhagen; the second Mr. FITZROY, son of Sir C. FITZROY, late Governor General of New South Wales, to whom he was private Secretary during his twelve years' occupation of that important post; the third Mr. H. LOCH, who has served in the Indian army, and is also personally well acquainted with China. Lastly, there is Mr. MORRISON, son of Dr. MORRISON, the famous linguist, who compiled the Anglo-Chinese Dictionary, and founded the Anglo-Chinese College, at which, we believe, Mr. MORRISON was educated. He succeeded his father as British Superintendent of Trade at Canton in 1834, an appointment which prevented him from fulfilling the paternal hope that the dictionary would be revised and corrected by him. The work is now out of print, and cannot be reproduced except at enormous cost, the blocks and types having been destroyed by fire. A copy of the work was sold lately at auction in London for £15, which price was considered very much below its intrinsic value. It is understood that, in addition to these gentlemen, an employe of the Foreign Office will accompany Lord ELGIN, as is usual in special missions like the present. For instance, when Lord JOHN RUSSELL undertook diplomacy at the Court of Vienna, he was attended by Mr. HAMMOND, permanent Under-Secretary for Foreign Affairs; but that gentleman's duties are too important to admit of his being absent from Downing-street for such a period as must necessarily be occupied in the voyage to and from China, and the business of the mission, and the duties performed by him in the case of the Viennese negotiations will probably devolve on some official of minor consequence.

Mr. LAWRENCE OLIPHANT, the gentleman who filled the post of private Secretary to Lord ELGIN in Canada, and who himself administered the affairs of the Indian Department, now accompanies him to China in the same capacity. Although a young man, he has already gained considerable reputation as an author, his graphic description of Nepaul, written when a mere youth, having been several times reprinted, whilst his later publications have attracted a large share of public attention from the singular manner in which his views of the policy of Russia were confirmed by the events of the late war. On his return from Turkey in 1854, he pointed out, in various publications, the policy of assisting the Circassians, and predicted the fall of Kars as the consequence of such policy being neglected. His advice was unheeded, and Kars fell. Before that disaster occurred, however, he had joined the army OMER PACHA in Asia Minor, and was an eye-witness of the gallant struggles which that gallant soldier made to retrieve the consequences of that period of inaction in the Crimea which contrasts so strikingly with the vigour shown and glorious victories won on the Danube, and for which certainly the Ottoman general was not to blame, whosoever the shoulders may be upon which the responsibility rightly rests. Mr. OLIPHANT was under fire at the Ingour, and has written the history of that expedition, upon the chief incidents of which he has also lectured before a military audience in London, pointing out the grave error of allowing Russia once more to take possession of Anapa and the other Circassian posts on the eastern shores of the Black Sea. Lord JOHN RUSSELL has recently informed the public that he also, while at Vienna, warned the British Government of the consequences of not imposing checks upon Russia in that direction. Mr. OLIPHANT has lately made a second tour of the United States, with whose institutions and people he expresses himself much pleased. He returned home by way of Central America and the Panama Railroad, thus adding another chapter, as it were, to his varied experiences of men and things.

The incidental reference to the Institutions of the United States suggests the mention of a circumstance that may be acceptable to some of your legal readers. The law reformers of this country have often referred to the clearness and perspicuity of the New-York Code, as also those of the Continent, as contrasting favorably with the obscure and often ambiguous phraseology of British statutes. American superiority in this respect has been again brought out in the evidence taken by the Select Committee which, during the last session, considered the recommendation made by the Statute Law Commission, that an officer should be appointed to supervise all bills in their progress through Parliament, so as to avoid the oversights, ambiguities, unnecessary repetitions, and other defects so frequent y found in our current legislation. Mr. W. EWART, Member for Dumfries, and brother of the honorable Member for Liverpool, in his examination of the witnesses, all of them eminent in the legal profession, drew attention to the codification of the laws of New-York, quoting with reference thereto the evidence given in 1836 by Mr. DUER. Mr. COULSON, who was a Member of the Statute Law Commission, recommended that the existing British statutes should be dealt with in the manner followed by Mr. DUER in his able classification and revisal of the laws of New-York. The dissolution of Parliament brought the inquiry to an abrupt termination, and the Committee did not feel themselves justified in offering any definite opinion on the merits of the question submitted to them; but the matter will probably come before a Select Committee of the new Parliament, and, though the main pros and cons renders it impossible to prophecy what the result may be, the example of New-York is not likely to be lost sight of in carrying out any plan for the classification of our statute law, which is a question altogether independent of the one submitted to the Committee. The daily organ of the Manchester party, in a leader on the subject in the impression of Tuesday, quoted the evidence of Mr. BELLENDEN KER, one of the Commissioners, with regard to the New-York Code, and referred to it eulogistically as one of the great models of legislative expression.

Another matter of a somewhat equally dry but not less essential nature invites an instructive paragraph. A Parliamentary return was issued yesterday, showing the alterations made in the customs' tariffs of foreign States since the 1st of August, 1856, with the dates, and the authorities whence the British Consuls abroad have derived the information. It appears from this document, which, strange to say, was moved for by Mr. NEWDEGATE, our almost only surviving Protectionist, and has been prepared in the statistical department of the Board of Trade, that most of the Continental States, and several of the transatlantic Republics, have made important modifications in their tariffs within the last two years. Russia has reduced the import duties on coffee and sugar; Sweden, those on silk, cotton, woolens, and linen manufactures, and admits rice and paddy, maize, potatoes, cheese and pork free. Belgium has abolished the duty on hides; and France those on timber, (except pine and elm,) besides reducing the duties payable on pine and elm timber, sugar, machinery, tools, hides, cotton and cocoa. Cotton from the United States, however, still pays a duty higher by 5*f.* in French vessels, and by 9*f.* 33*c.* in foreign vessels than that imposed on Cotton grown in French Colonies. Considerable preference is given also to the cotton of Egypt and India, as compared with that of the United States. Portugal has reduced the duties on breadstuffs; Austria those on cocoa, coffee, sugar, and cotton, woolen, and linen yarn; Sardinia that on India rubber; and the Pope those on cotton manufactures, and straw hats. The category of articles in the Mexican tariff upon which the duty has been reduced occupies nine folio pages, and includes cotton, cocoa, agricultural implements, cotton cloths, clocks, and such a long array of hardware articles that the enumeration reads like the price-list of a Birmingham warehouse. Whale oil, timber wood, and iron horses, and steam engines are admitted free; tobacco is prohibited, New-Granada fellows, with a list so long that it occupies no less than seventeen pages, and quite throws Mexico into the shade. Cotton and cotton manufactures, cocoa, and coffee, India-rubber, hides, gun barrels, drugs, fowlingpieces, carpenters' tools, tin and pewter wares, iron sheets and nails, ice, saddlery, cutlery, casks, hats, tobacco, [illegible] and an infinite variety of other articles are included in the new tariff, which was promulgated in June last. The Government of Montevideo has established a scale of ad valorem duties on a long list of raw and manufactured articles, the principal of which, with reference to the trade of the United States, are boots and shoes, candlewicks, fowlingpieces, hatchets, lard, nails, pine planks, rice, sugar, tobacco, tea, wheat, and a variety of manufactured goods in cotton, silk and woolen. As regards tobacco, Bahia leaf, by the decree of July 17, 1856, is admitted at 90 per cent., while the duty on United States tobacco is 30 per cent. The Peruvian tariff has now been nearly two years in operation; it reduces the duties on iron nails, India rubber boots and shoes, hides and skins, rice, cocoa, flour, sugar, coffee, cigars, lard, cheese, tobacco, tea and wheat, and admits a number of minor articles duty free.

The papers by this mail will take you overflowing details of the ceremonies at Liverpool yesterday and the day before, in consequence of Mr. W. BROWN's inauguration of the institution his munificence has founded there for the benefit of his poor townsmen. Mr. BROWN has been a fortunate man in most things, and not least so in having this event chronicled at a time when there is a perfect famine in the newspapers, and when, consequently, details are given with a minuteness which the doings of kings and emperors would not command a month hence, or half a month ago. The speech which will most interest Americans is that by Mr. MONKTON MILNES, M. P., a poet of tolerable repute himself, as author of Palm Leaves, but better known as the editor of KEATS. He gave the "Health of the United States,"—rather a strong metaphor, you will say, even for a poet, and very poetical indeed, inasmuch as he left out both the state of the health and the health of the State; but he brought in an "American man of letters, a man whose name ought to be written in red letters, the man of the Scarlet Letter, NATHANIEL HAWTHORNE, your Consul at Liverpool, who, of course, returned thanks, and of course, did it as he ought to do, complimenting very neatly the gentleman who had very neatly complimented him.

The republic of letters here, just now, is anything but in a condition of Arcadian unanimity. A Mr. LUCAS, who has followed the late Mr. SAMUEL PHILLIPS on the leading journal, is reviving the old vituperative style of "slashing," or rather mangling articles, and has created considerable disgust by an ungenerous, ill-conditioned, and most unjust disparagement on the two first volumes of the Peninsular Historian's memoirs of his immortal brother, the Bearded Vision that Swept Sevada, all because Sir W. NAPIER has had a quarrel with the Times about the insertion or non-insertion of some letters on a passing topic. The concluding two volumes are out to-day, and in them, as in the other two, the deceased hero, Sir C. NAPIER, pays many compliments, in his strange, rough way, to your countrymen. In one passage, [illegible] in 1853, he says, "What matchless the Yankees [illegible] the wisdom and just sentiment that Americans ought to possess! We will not beat truth to the floor! Weak people and weak nations are always full of justice and right in quarrels; but strong people smell of wrong. The Yankee will conquer, right or wrong. Conquest is his watchword. To avenge his fillibuster against Cuba, he will finally take Cuba and all else he covets, till he has a split at home." So speaks the man who assumed to thrash Russia [illegible] larger than the United Kingdom.

[illegible] Dinner Recently at Manchester.

From the London Times.

* * * And now for the much-maligned hundred and seventy odd whom the British public—so such had judges of men—have given us instead of those who have been ousted from their seats. It is true that many are but little known, and that many are young—some very young. But, even to take the most superficial estimate, there are quite as many Lords, and Honorables, and Barons's, and great country names in the new as in the old House. The new names of this class cannot be a worse pick of the aristocracy than the old, and there is at least hope on the side of the young and the unknown. Some of the names are sufficiently well known to give a definite promise of novelty; there are enough radicals, and humorists, and literary men, and men said to be odd, to be some compensation for the less regular sort of talents thrown out in the general election. There are, too, many men of business, such as the new members for Manchester and for some other boroughs. Then there are old friends come back again, such as the member for South Durham. Otherwise the new list offers large scope for conjecture, and it is quite impossible to say what we may and what we may not expect in the new House. But the British House of Commons, as it was always supposed, does not depend priliefly on that sort of talent which a man brings from public meetings, from debating societies, from hard hitting, or from any other special use of the mental or oratorical powers. It is a peculiar sphere, and has special requirements of its own. What it demands chiefly is common sense; and a man of common sense, good temper, and a clear and simple style of expression, is a far more useful man than than a declaimer, however fast and furious. We have that faith in the country, and especially in those feelings which have influenced the election, that we are sure the 170 new members comprise a respectable amount of character, good sense, and good manners. In such a lottery there must be more blanks than prizes, but they will not be all blanks. They will naturally start with more courage than the crowd which has submitted for years to the claims of louder and more forward speakers, and who are no longer able to break the spell of silence. One will encourage another, and before long we shall have to congratulate the country on the fact that the political soil is not wholly exhausted. In the general readiness to decry the new House we recognise little more than the uniform disparagement of a new generation by the old. What boy leaving a school ever thinks that the new comers can rise to the stature of the giants he can remember? Who, on revisiting his old school, does not think it lamentably fallen off? Who does not deplore the decay of his town, the falling off of his neighborhood, and the general degeneracy of society? Of course, the old members think small of the new ones. We can remember those old ones thought quite as small by the "old fogies" of their younger days. So it always has been, and always will be. We, however, beg to retain fresher views and hopes, and to believe that the new members will turn out at least as good as the old ones.

Grand Banquet to Mr. Brown in Liverpool.

SPEECH OF MR. HAWTHORNE.

The proceedings in connection with laying the foundation of the New Free Library and Museum, which is being built in Liverpool at the sole cost of Mr. WILLIAM BROWN, M. P. for South Lancashire, took place on the 15th ult. The ceremony passed off extremely well.

At the banquet given by the town to Mr. BROWN, as some mark of its appreciation of the princely gift, over 300 noblemen and gentlemen were present. The chair was occupied by the Deputy Mayor of Liverpool, and among the guests were Lord Stanley, General Sir Harry Smith, Lord Talbot, Sir J. Pakington, Mr. Monckton Milnes, Mr. Nathaniel Hawthorne, the Bishop of Chester, Sir J. P. Shuttleworth, Major-General the Hon. Sir Edward Cust.

The distinguished member for South Lancashire answered in a brief and pertinent speech to the toast proposing his health, and, after other appropriate sentiments had been responded to, Mr. MONCKTON MILNES rose, and in the course of his remarks said: There is a large population far away over the Atlantic—our brothers in another hemisphere. [Applause.] I would call Mr. Brown a citizen of both worlds, [hear, hear,] and in many a crowded city of our brethren on the other side of the Atlantic will the celebration of this day be read. It is he and such as he who have brought together the two great countries of England and America. It is he and such as he, before the electric wire had been laid down underneath the surface of the great Atlantic, lying on a rock which Providence seems to have raised for the special purpose of uniting the two great empires—it is he and such as he who have brought together these two nations by the electricity of common interest and common sympathy and feeling. It is my object to bring before you and to drink the health of a citizen of the great republic of the United States. That connexion which Mr. BROWN has established between the material interests of England and America, NATHANIEL HAWTHORNE has done much to cement. [Applause.] His Scarlet Letter has struck to the heart of every man with whom it came into contact. He has built his House of Seven Gables in every town in England, and as for his Twice-Told Tales, we will wish they had been told ten times. [Laughter and Applause.] Gentlemen, therefore, in giving you the health of that distinguished citizen of the United States, and that distinguished citizen of the literature of the world, I believe you will join with me, and that you will feel you are in no degree deviating from the special purpose for which we have met together. [Applause.] And those two great nations, speaking the same great speech, carrying out in the main the same great institutions, are the hope and the blessing of mankind—the hope of the future world, and, under Providence, a blessing to the nations. I give you: "The United States of America."

Mr. HAWTHORNE, United States Consul, said—Mr. Mayor, my lords, and gentlemen, I appear in this hall [illegible] not in any individual capacity of my own, but as the representative of my country, and especially of the literature of America; and I heartily wish the literary men of America had a better representative—one who has done more for the cause of literature than I have done, and one who could have acknowledged better than I possibly can the honor that has been conferred upon them. [Cheers.] The honorable gentleman who has alluded to me has made allusions also to some productions of my own. That praise, gentlemen, is the more valuable, coming as it does from one who is so eminently qualified to express an opinion when a thing is well done. His praise is very gratifying, for there is nothing in literary reputation so dear to an American as a knowledge that he is considered worthy of commendation in the land of his ancestors. [Loud cheers.] But, gentlemen, I must not forget that I am not speaking here in my own behalf, but on behalf of the literature of my country, and on behalf of the literary men of America; the poets, the historians, the novelists of America. I thank you, for I have no right to decline any applause which you may be pleased to award to them, how much soever I might feel inclined to decline that honor to myself individually. ("Hear, hear," and cheers.) The circumstances of our country have directed much of our attention to the rough side of life, instead of those softening influences which are favorable to literary productions; but it is something to me to think that we have accomplished an act of gratitude—of heart-felt gratitude—to England. It is something to my countrymen to know that they have yet maintained the old Anglo-Saxon spirit, and that it has some hold upon them now in their literary pursuits. It gives me happiness to believe this, because the more we return to you for the great measure of enjoyment that we have received from you the more we shall aid you in promoting peace and good will, in which I hope the two nations will ever continue, because every American who has written books which England is content to receive into her literature has contributed something to that excellent result. Having responded to the toast which has been proposed, I might sit down, but I cannot do so, and you will pardon me, for, as has been justly observed, had the ties been drawn but a little closer, America would have called Mr. BROWN her son. [Cheers.] At all events, he has the connection by blood, by friendship, by affection in all the interests of life, which we shall not certainly forget, neither will he. [Loud cheers.] It is good for our country that there should be such men—men connected with one country, and with another, and yet not the less true to their own beloved land. [Cheers.] It was proved, and not very long ago either, that it was good for both countries that he was here—[hear, hear]—that he grasped one in his right hand, and the other in his left. Sir, I assure him, on behalf of my fellow countrymen, that we are always as proud of him as if he were one of us; we are proud of his good deeds, of his illustrious life, and of his great acts of noble and enlightened beneficence. [Cheers.] This last is the deed conceived in the very spirit, and done in the very spirit in which an enlightened benefactor should seek to benefit his country—by considering the means by which he might best promote human happiness throughout the world. Gentlemen, I thank you. [Cheers.]

Mr. BROWN gave the "Health of the Deputy Mayor," and that gentleman having responded the proceedings terminated.

Another Expedition to the Arctic Seas.

From the London Times.

We have for several years past most urgently and consistently opposed any further expedition to the Polar Seas in search of the relics of the Erebus and Terror. We are fully persuaded that many years ago the last survivor of the unfortunate expedition in which Sir JOHN FRANKLIN and his companions were engaged had ceased to exist. We rejoiced at the recent determination of the Admiralty not to throw away good lives after bad, and to refuse absolutely the countenance of the Government to any further explorations in the Polar Seas with the hope of recovering that which had long since perished. When we say thus much it will not be supposed that we are asking for any assistance from the public authorities, or even from the public, towards a new expedition which Lady FRANKLIN has set on foot. This lady, as we have been given to understand, has embarked the last relics of her fortune in an ultimate expedition, which is to be directed towards that particular spot of the Polar regions where tidings may be expected from the Esquimaux of the lost voyagers. The expedition we believe to be a Quixotic one; but who will venture to speak with disrespect, or even with indifference, of the efforts—ay, of the desperation of Lady FRANKLIN in such a cause? Looking at the matter as one of plain common sense, we believe that speedier and cheaper access to the region in question might be obtained by overland and smaller excursions from the extreme settlements of the Hudson's Bay Company; but Lady FRANKLIN has resolved upon a final expedition by sea, and therefore we can only say "God speed" to the adventurers in so noble a cause. Public assistance to this bereaved lady might have been given in one way. What if the old Resolute had been handed over to her as a gift from the English public? The ship, battered and ice worn ship might thus have been turned to some account, and Lady FRANKLIN might possibly have been saved some expense. We can form no favorable expectations as to the results which may be looked for from this last Arctic Expedition; but, as far as Lady FRANKLIN is concerned, she has every right to the sympathy of her fellow-countrymen.

The "Great Eastern."

From the London Times, April 10.

Among the passions which belong to human nature we may recognize what may be called a passion for size. Those primitive works of fiction which feed the childish imagination appeal very boldly to this passion. They go straight to the point, and create without ceremony men, houses, and lions ten times bigger than actual men, real houses and live lions. But this is not the only quarter in which this appeal is made. Science, with all its gravity, copies fiction here, and appeals to the same passion exactly as the childish fairy tale did. What single ingredient in astronomy, for example, tells more in creating a taste for that science than the enormous distances in which it abounds? The figures which represent the distances of heavily bodies from us, or the speed with which light or the speed with which electricty travels have the same fascination for the scientific that the numbers in the banker's book have for the covetous imagination. The one set of figures constitutes the conventional symbol for space, and the other for wealth.

Whoever wants to feed this natural passion for size in the primitive way, and to see a true giant in its own line, must visit the bank of the Thames at Millwall. But before he goes we recommend him, unless he is very well versed in the Book of Genesis, to turn to the 6th chapter, and refresh his memory as to the dimensions of Noah's Ark and the "fashion" of its making: "The length of the Ark shall be 300 cubits, the breadth of it 50 cubits, and the height of it 30 cubits." So, reckoning the cubit at a foot and a half, we have a ship 450 feet long, 75 feet broad, and 45 feet high. While the visitor is collecting data as to ships, sacred and profane, he may turn out "Marlborough" in the Navy List, and there he will see that the largest line-of-battle ship in the British Navy is exactly of 4,000 tons burden. And now let him get on board a Greenwich steamer and be steamed through the picturesque Pool to Millwall. Just opposite Deptford he will be aware of something pre-Adamite wallowing in the mud of the Isle of Dogs—a stranded saurian ship, to which even Noah's Ark must yield precedence, and to which all the Marlboroughs, and Wellingtons, and Montebellos, and Napiers in the world are mere cockboats. An iron hull of the burden of 22,00 tons, nearly 700 feet long, and 80 high, will meet his eye—the hull of Mr. SCOTT RUSSELL's Great Eastern steamship. We must give a few more figures, for every figure is a monster, and, worth knowing. Only for a figure of 30,000—the number of the iron plates which compose the enormous erection, each weighing the third of a ton, and each fastened by 100 rivets. The ship will accommodate 4,000 passengers, 500 of whom are first-class. On an emergency she could carry 10,000 troops. She will contain 10 boilers, and 100 furnaces. The cylinder of every engine will be six feet in diameter, and will weigh five times as much as the great bell of St. Paul's. The screw propeller will be 24 feet in diameter, and the diameter of the paddle-wheels will be 56 feet, or considerably larger than the circus at Astley's. The principal suite of saloons will be 400 feet in length, and a promenade round the deck will afford a walk of more than a quarter of a mile. This monster ship will combine steam power in both shapes, screw and paddle, with sailing power. She will carry 11,000 tons of coal, she will be lighted by gas made on board, and the electric light will flicker like St. Elmo's fire at night from her mast-head. She will spread 6,500 yards of canvas, and her speed is computed at 15 nots, or 18 miles an hour—a rate which will perform the voyage to India by the Cape, and to Australia, in little more than a month. Who would not wish to be the captain of this gallant ship?

With these principal figures, then, gone through, let us imagine the Great Eastern afloat, and on her road to Bombay or Melbourne, and with her ordinary complement of passengers on board. The first idea which strikes us in the multitude of faces on board. It will, in fact, be a whole town afloat, and much more than a town of 4,000 population, because it will be a floating town of 4,000 grown up persons; at least, with comparatively few exceptions, each of them being what is called an "individual,"—by which we mean a human being of size to command notice, and having, to appearance, at least, a mind and will of his own, together with a formed air, tond, and manner peculiar to himself. In this sense even young ladies are individuals. All this crowd of individualities will be collected within the dimensions of 700 feet by 80. What a new shape of human society! Take the 800 first-class passengers by themselves, and what room does even this number afford for the formation of all kinds of different circles and sets, which will know nothing of each other, one man only just knowing another by sight, and hardly that! How many immeasurable social chasms will be collected within a few hundred feet! How many Mr. Smiths will there be who will not speak to Mr. Jones during the whole voyage because he is not in the same set! How many Mr. Joneses will pay back Mr. Smith in the same coin! Between how many "nice" young ladies and "proper" young gentlemen will there not be a great gulf fixed, because in the eyes of anxious mothers the said young gentlemen are not desirable persons, but mere penniless bipeds! What flirtations will there not be behind boats, what rivalries, and, if many Americans voyage by the Great Eastern, what duelings may we not expect on that ample deck! In short, what an epitome or camera-obscura of the world will the Great Eastern present! It will be worth any aspiring novelist's while to take his berth to Australia or India and back again, simply for the great convenience of having so much human nature brought before him within so small a compass. It will be the mountain brought to MAHOMET, the world condensing itself before his eyes, for the sake of being observed and examined. The rapid succession of faces will bewilder him at first, but individuality will come out in time, though he must be sharp about his work, otherwise the Great Eastern will have stopped her screw and paddles before he has got any results. If his material is enlarged, his time is much curtailed on the new system. Farewell to long voyages, with their appropriate quarrels and matches—their love-makings, jilting, reconciliations and irrevocable unions; voyage life has entered on another phase. For what is a month?—it is gone before we begin to think about its going. How will the old voyagers look back to the romantic days when a room-full of persons were their own company for four months, gradually forming families or friendships, where attachments rose up among "young people" unconsciously, and by the mere passive influence of the scene! We are growing a busier nation every year, and cannot afford time for more than one chapter of this sea romance.

But we must not let the appeal to imagination supersede the real, practical result of the grand experiment of the Great Eastern. The poet, as he surveyed this vast sublunary scene of restless industry and adventure, was struck by nothing so much as the triumph of man over the sea. He expresses himself as more than struck—as shocked:

"Nequiquam Deus abscidit
Prudens Oceano dissociabili
Terras, si tamen impie
Non tangenda rates transiliunt vada."

He argued that the sea was a providential appointment, and that it was impious in man to struggle against it—he had no right to unite what God had separated, and connect land with land when the divine power had inserted water between. We have long seen the weakness of this argument, and arrived at a much better doctrine of final cause than this. But if any one wants to see a good finishing blow given to the Horatian argument—at least on the solitur ambulando principle—he may see it given by the Great Eastern. That mighty fabric indeed does not talk, but it acts—its act being a month's voyage to India or to Australia. That act, while it is a speechless, is at the same time the most powerful answer, that the religious scruples of the sweetest poet could receive. A reflecting mind will see in such a voyage a much more natural, proper, wise, and obedient fulfillment of the designs of Providence than any timid self-confinement and servile deference to a barrier of nature would have been. It will appear that the sea was made to alternate with the dry land, not that continents might be disconnected, but that man should have the opportunity of exerting his skill and invention in connecting them. The result of this great experiment in ship-building, if it answers, of which there is little or no doubt, will be a consolidation of the British Empire such as no two more yet seen. Half of the space which separates the various portions of it from the mother country and from each other will be annihilated. Our colonies will be brought comparatively close to us, and, what is almost of as much importance as the actual rapidity gained, they will be more than twice as near to us in imagination. The difference between a month's voyage and two or three months is all the difference to the imagination. We think of a place as within reach, and within a home distance, if it is only "a month off." The whole Empire is thus brought into a home compass, and obtains that addition of strength which so much greater union gives. We shall find ourselves paying visits to and receiving visits from India and Australia. Our friends will come over for the Summer with return tickets, and the British Empire will become, in virtual compact, a province.

The Alleged Conspiracies against Napoleon—Arrests.

A few more arrests were, it is said, made yesterday and the day before. I have not noticed the various stories, some of them extravagant enough, which have been current about these arrests. It is hardly necessary to say that secret societies never wholly disappear in France. They may be more or less quiet—more or less dangerous—more or less withdrawn from the public eye, but they do not cease to exist, and their influence is never wholly inert. When a certain time elapses, and when a movement is observable, the authorities think it useful to lay their hands on a few dozens. To do this, it is necessary to entice them out of their hiding-places, as rats are coaxed out of their holes. In the meantime the traps are prepared, and as the conspirators become visible or tangible they are caught when least aware of their danger. The ratcatchers in the present instance have been rather successful, though it is probable that at least one-third of the arrested are agents of the secret police. I believe these Pacific and in Canada. The annexation of Texas, and the forced surrender of California, are other evidences of the secret chronic policy of aggrandisement. In this one purpose the United States have spared no expenditure (money or blood. Our own prosperous and loyal colony of Canada has not been exempt from the sympathizing attempts of the citizens of the United States. But the Monroe doctrine received its full development when the present President of the United States put his hand to the Ostend manifesto. The acquisition of Cuba by purchase, or by force, has been for more than thirty years a cardinal point of American diplomacy. What Lopez and his followers failed in attempting may now apparently be accomplished by the United States, should Spain and Mexico be engaged in war. The President of the United States has pledged himself to this line of policy; and, as the great living type, "will the responsibilities and obligations of his present office stay his hand? But are the nations of Europe, the allies of Spain, to remain inactive spectators while this act of international piracy is being consummated? We believe that their best exertions will still continue to be applied to the high and worthy object of removing the existing cause of difference. That such wise and judicious policy may be successful must be the earnest hope of every person who wishes to maintain inviolate those great principles of public justice which exist not only for the protection of the weak, but to arrest the strong in the pursuit of lawless aggrandisement. It is unfortunate that the Ostend manifesto should stand before the world as an index of Mr. BUCHANAN's policy; but the greater will be the merit of that gentleman if in his more influential position he should now openly disavow those principles which have attached so discreditable a name to this act of American diplomacy.

THE CHINA WAR.

Co-operation of England and France—The Concessions to be Extorted from the Emperor—Lord Elgin's Instructions—Aid from Portugal—Attitude of the United States—Great Defensive Preparations of the Chinese.

From the Paris Correspondents of the London Standard.

The celebration of the French Government in the further English operations in China will be the heartiest kind, and that the Catholic Church, for the protection of its numerous missionaries there, has made urgent representations to the Emperor to take an active part in the war. It is said that Lord ELGIN will demand from the Pekin Cabinet a renewal of former treaties, with the following amplifications of some of their provisions: As regards commerce, the number of ports open to Europeans is to be nine instead of five; and diplomatic missions are to be established at Pekin on the same footing as those of Russia. As regards offence and defence, it is said that the English Government demands the right of establishing military posts wherever they have Consuls, and that vessels of war may enter any port whatever.

From the Paris Pays.

A letter from London gives us some details relative to the instructions given to Lord ELGIN for his mission to China. He is to have the superior direction of all affairs in that part of the world, and for that purpose he is to receive full powers from the English Government, with whom alone he is to be in correspondence. He is to decide on the opportuneness of all warlike operations, and to fix the time for commencing them. In case the authorities of the country should think fit to send propositions of arrangement, he is to endeavor to obtain the following concessions: 1. The old treaties are to be renewed and extended to eight ports of China, in place of five; and, in addition, English trading vessels are to have the right of putting in, from stress of weather or for repairs, to every point on the coast. 2. England is to have, like Russia, a college at Pekin. The head of that establishment, which is to be composed of five members at least, is to be changed with all official relations with the Chinese Government. And, 3d, the English are to have military posts in all the towns in which they have Consuls or agents. A piece of ground shall be conceded to them at Shanghae, and another at Canton, on which barracks fort and form military establishments, the strength of which shall be fixed by common accord. Subsequently of these principal conditions, other secondary points are left to the judgment of the plenipotentiaries.

PORTUGUESE REPRESENTATIONS AT CANTON.

From the Paris Correspondence of the London Times.

A private letter from Lisbon, of the 10th, gives some information of the intervention of the Portuguese Government with respect to the affairs of China. An expedition is in course of preparation in the ports of that kingdom. It is composed of a corvette, a brig, a steam despatch boat, and a transport. The garrison of Macao will be raised to 4000 men, selected from the best troops of the army. Macao was ceded to the Portuguese in 1679, in the reign of HENRY, the successor of SEBASTIAN, in recompence for the services which Portugal had rendered to the princes of the dynasty of Tsalang. In virtue of that concession, which was renewed in 1798 by the Emperor YUNGCHING, and again in 1846 by KIANGHING, Portugal had the property of the establishment of Macao, which was administered by a Portuguese Governor, while the Emperor of China preserved the right of appointing a Mandarin to watch over the interests of Chinese subjects. For the last 50 years, however, matters have changed. The Mandarin was allowed to assume the right of administration of the settlement, and cruelly oppressed the foreign population, while the authority of the Portuguese Governor dwindled into a merely nominal one. Some years ago the Portuguese Commander, AMARAL, who represented the Sovereign of Portugal, tried to enforce respect for the Portuguese flag, and was assassinated by the Chinese. Portugal, supported as she will be by other and more powerful governments, appears determined to profit by the present occasion, and maintain her rights in China. The garrison of Macao will be placed under the command of a Governor, whose instructions are to re-establish in the settlement the authority of Portugal.

THE UNITED STATES AND THE BRITISH DEPUTE WITH CHINA.

From the Manchester Guardian.

It is said, happily not on indisputable authority, that the American Government has refused to cooperate with England in the endeavor to bring the Canteenese and the Imperial Commissioner to reason, and to establish the relations of the foreign residents and merchants with the Chinese inhabitants and officials upon a satisfactory footing. If this is really the case, the part taken by Mr. BUCHANAN's Cabinet is deeply to be regretted. The assistance which we might have received from the United States squadron in the Chinese waters would not, indeed, have been either necessary or important; but it would have been both satisfactory to the feelings and serviceable to the interests of this country to enjoy the support of the United States in compelling the Chinese to afford redress for their past offences, and in placing matters for the future in such a position as may effectually prevent the recurrence of such contests as the present. Had the Chinese Government found that the three most powerful nations represented at Canton were unanimously resolved to take rigorous measures for the repression of such outrages as those lately perpetrated there, and were prepared to insist conjointly upon the concession of full and sufficient guarantees against their repetition, and the establishment of a system which should insure a prompt and effectual settlement of all future disputes between natives and foreigners, it would probably have been found that even the obstinacy of the Celestial Empire was not proof against such a combination. It must be remembered that the Americans are also interested in the maintenance of peace and order in the ports opened to foreigners by the Government of Pekin; that their trade, as well as ours, suffers by the continuance of the present state of things; that the lives of their citizens are quite as much endangered as those of British subjects by the excitable temperament of the Chinese. The populace of Canton will care very little whether they immolate a free-born Yankee or a subject of Her Britannic Majesty; and the rabble of neighboring villages, when aroused to frenzy by the appearance of a foreign garb in their streets, will care very little whether the inoffensive foreigner whom they hunt to death for presuming to take a walk in the country was born under the union jack or the stars and stripes. The cause is one in which all civilized nations who have any dealings with the Chinese are alike interested—the cause of humanity and common sense against a ferocious barbarism. It is much to be regretted that under such circumstances there should be any doubt as to the sympathies of America.

We hope that the report which has reached us is not only premature, but incorrect, and that no personal ill-will to this country which may be entertained by any member of Mr. BUCHANAN's Cabinet, will prevent the President from acting, as he is imperatively required to act, for the interests of humanity and civilization, and for the protection of his fellow-citizens in China or engaged in the Chinese trade. It is manifest that the assent of America will be essential to any thorough arrangement of the difficulties which impede the communication between Chinese and foreigners; and, this being the case, it will be best that their claims should be taken at once, and that they should join, conjointly with England and France, in a final and satisfactory settlement of all matters in dispute, and the adoption of such regulations as may enable the foreign Powers to put a stop to the lawless conduct of the Chinese populace and the prolix excuses of officials. Should the Government of the United States decline to take part in this good work, it must be done without their assistance; but it would be more consonant with their national dignity, and with a true and far-sighted policy, to adopt a bold and energetic course, and to take that position and exercise that influence to which their interest in the question entitles them.

From the London Post.

We may also mention another instance of isolation on the part of the United States Government. The proceedings of Sir JOHN BOWRING in China have received the sanction not only of the American authorities upon the spot, but of the American people at home. The British Cabinet have sent out Lord ELGIN to Canton to negotiate a treaty, in the advantages of which should any be obtained, the United States will not be asked participation. England and France have agreed to act in concert, but the Cabinet at Washington, according to the latest accounts, refuses to join in the proposed alliance. We are strongly impressed with the belief that the only means which European States can adopt for the purpose of regulating their intercourse with a people so singular and strange as the Chinese, will be by the establishment of mixed commission courts, like those which exist under the different treaties with Turkey, to settle and determine disputes between Christians and foreigners. To accomplish this object the concurrence of the United States Government is highly desirable if not necessary; but, instead of adopting this course, it appears resolved to stand aloof, ready to reap any advantage, but unwilling to encounter any trouble and inconvenience. All we can say is, that such a policy is totally unworthy of a great and enlightened nation, and that it is one not likely to meet with favor or approbation in England, or any other country in the world except the United States—and perhaps not even there, amongst the commercial classes.

Great Defensive Preparations of the Chinese.

The Moniteur de la Flotte publishes some further details relative to the war in China. The Chinese, it is said, are at present making considerable military preparations, which [illegible] Since the attack on Canton the Chinese have executed enormous works on the Pekin [illegible] forts which line the Yellow Sea, and by which a [illegible] is maintained with Pekin. That river is now barred in 22 different places by dams built of stone, which completely intercept the navigation. These works are regarded as a curiosity. Moreover, the three branches of the Peiho canalised by the Emperor KIA-KANG in 1817 are cut, and the course of one of them, the Hu-ho, has been turned off into the lake of Hohe-tchi. When an army invades the Chinese Empire, the principal means of defence is to let the waters of this lake overflow the country. The system of defence, efficacious against an enemy, but most disastrous for the country, was first used against the insurgents in 1853. The City of Pekin is consequently perfectly safe from an attack either by land or sea, and the Emperor will in any desperate circumstance be protected by the fanaticism of the people, who will stop at no means to destroy the foreigners.

A circumstance has lately demonstrated the truth of this fact. The British ships proceeding to Canton have been in the habit of taking fresh water at Whampoa from a small river which falls into the Tchukiang. It was remarked that the sailors, using this water lately have been attacked with colic, and after a careful investigation it was discovered that the water had been poisoned by the Chinese. They employed for this purpose the trunks of certain trees, which, after being prepared for the occasion, impart a deadly poison to the water. The Chinese are naturally malignant, and their wickedness is increased by their fanaticism, which is beyond description. There is but one way to subdue them, and that is to act on their senses and to terrify them by a display of force, and by a maritime demonstration on a grand scale, such as is about to be accomplished by the British Government. It appears, moreover, that some of the wealthiest Mandarins in the empire propose to revive the great commercial company founded in 1759 by TSONG-TOO. These great dignitaries, through personal interest, are highly favorable to an arrangement with the English, notwithstanding their warlike manifestations, and, as they are in direct communication with the members of the Nuy-Ko, or Cabinet Council at Pekin, they can bring their influence to bear directly on the Emperor's advisers. The revival of the company founded in 1759 will render it impossible in future for the Chinese Government to violate at will its treaties with foreigners. The Moniteur de la Flotte concludes that an arrangement of the difficulties at present existing between the Chinese and English is perfectly possible. For this purpose the British Government have merely to adopt the only means efficacious with the Chinese character, which is to make a formidable demonstration on the coast of the Chinese Empire.

THE VERY LATEST.

LONDON, Saturday, April 18—2 P. M.

We are indebted to Captain SHANNON, of the Royal Mail steamship Africa, for the following additional news, telegraphed from London to Liverpool just before the departure of the Africa.

Le Nord sts es that the Grand Duke CONSTANTINE will not visit England.

The cattle epidemic having reached the Prussian frontiers, a company of infantry has been sent to the Circle of Plesse to cut off all communications.

The Madrid journals state that the Queen will open the Spanish Cortes in person. Amongst the first measures to be brought forward, will be one for a reform of the tariff. It was considered certain that her Majesty was enceinte.

The death of the Neapolitan Minister at the Spanish Court is announced.

The officers of the Russian frigate Wibory have given a splendid collation to the Empress Dowager. Her Majesty proposed a toast to the health of the King of Sardinia.

In the protocol of the Paris Conference, submitting a basis of a compromise between Prussia an Switzerland, the mediating Powers will declare they have no means of compelling the adoption of their views, but a hope will be expressed that neither party will proceed to any act calculated to disturb the peace of Europe.

Queen VICTORIA's recovery goes on favorably. The infant Princess continues well.

SPAIN AND MEXICO.

The Paris correspondent of the Times expresses a strong hope that the differences between these two powers will be pacifically settled.

The Spanish Ambassador at Paris has had interviews on the question with Count WALEWSKI and Lord CAWLEY, and he was to see the Mexican Envoy yesterday.

If the attempts at pacification failed, the Spanish Government will probably address a note to the French and English Cabinets, and perhaps to the other powers, setting forth the moderation of its demand, and declaring that, in the event of hostilities, the Cabinet of Madrid is not to be held responsible for the consequences.

COMMERCIAL.

At noon, on Saturday, April 18, Consols for Money were quoted at 92¾@93, and for Account, 93¼@93¾.

IN AMERICAN STOCKS we have nothing of importance to notice. BARING BROTHERS & CO.

Liverpool Markets.

LIVERPOOL, Friday, April 17, 1857.

COTTON—The market has been quiet, if not dull, notwithstanding the accounts from Manchester are better than might be expected after the long depression here. The fresh imports of the past fortnight daily add to the stock, and being brought on the market as landed, have served gradually to depress prices, which must be quoted ¼d. ⅌ ℔. lower in the fortnight for "Middling," and above, and ¼d.@½d. ⅌ ℔. for the lower qualities, the latter being almost unsalable. We quote—Middling Orleans, 7¾d.; Mobile, 7¾d.; Bowed, 7¾d. Present estimated stock 350,000 bales, including 201,000 of American. Stock same time last year, 535,420 bales, of which 301,941 were American.

TOBACCO—The Trade is slow—but regular in prices—the demand being principally for leafy samples. We quote—Virginia Leaf, 7½d.@10¼d., Strips, 11d.@14d.; Kentucky Leaf, 7½d.@11d., Strips, 11d.@14d.

BREADSTUFFS—In most of the Country Markets, as well as at London, there has been during the week a gradual stiffness of price, with a somewhat more extended demand for Wheat, and a better inquiry for Flour, but the trade has been firm, holders evincing no disposition to sell except at full market rates. Wheat has been freely taken, the inquiry for Indian Corn has been fair, and the transactions in Flour, although somewhat limited in extent, have been fully up to quotations. The receipts from the United States within past week include some 8,000 qrs. Wheat, 22,580 qrs. Indian Corn, and 6,600 bbls. Flour. The deliveries by Farmers for week ending 11th inst., were 98,245 qrs. at an average of 55s. 11d., against 98,773 qrs., at 56s. 7d., for corresponding week of last year.

To day's market was a decided improvement on any that had been held for some time—the attendance was good, and the demand for WHEAT animated at an advance of 2d ⅌ 2d. Good FLOUR was more saleable, and for INDIAN CORN there was a free inquiry. We quote—WHEAT, White, 3s. 6d.@3s 9d.; Mixed, 3s 5d.@3s. 10d.; Red, 3s. 6d.@3s. 8d. FLOUR, Western Canal, 27s. 6d.@28s. 6d.; Philadelphia, 28s.@29s.; Ohio, 29s.@31s. 6d. INDIAN CORN, Mixed, 30s.; Yellow, 31s.; White, 32s. 6d.@34s. 6d.

BACON—The firmness noticed at the close of last week has continued, and in some instances has resulted in an advance of 6d. ⅌ cwt. on Boneless and the better descriptions of Ribbed Long Middles, as well as in higher prices for Short. The stock here is large; that in London is still less; and as we, in addition to a good home demand, are likely to have an inquiry from France, holders appear sanguine as to future prices, and although willing to meet the market, are unwilling to press sales. We quote: Long Middles, Ribbed, 54s. 6d. to 55s. 6d.; Boneless, 57s. to 58s.; short Middles, rib in, 53s.; Boneless, 60s. asked; Cumberland, 53s. to 54s. 6d.

BEEF AND PORK are in fair demand; choice BEEF will command 130s. to 135s.; and for good PORK 92s. 6d. to 95s. is paid.

LARD has been depressed by free receipts, and at present there are sellers on the spot at 70s. and for forward delivery at 68s. The stock is estimated at some 20,000 bbls.

TALLOW.—The prospect of early receipts from the Baltic has depressed the market. Butchers' Association ranges from 58s. to 58s.

A New Filibustering Enterprise on Foot.

PROPOSED EXPEDITION TO VERAGUA, IN THE STATE OF PANAMA.

PANAMA, Saturday, April 18, 1857.

By the mail, which arrived three days since, comes a report that a filibustering expedition is organising in New-Orleans to take possession of the province of Veragua, in this State, in order to make a diversion from thence on Costa Rica, in favor of WALKER. I opine that it will be rather too late to render that "busted up" individual any assistance, even if such an affair is seriously thought of. It is probably, however, nothing more than a threat thrown out to Costa Rica, to prevent her from sending away any more soldiers to Nicaragua. And it is a very foolish threat at that. It would be at least ten days' good march from the Atlantic side into that province; and when the filibusters got there, if they ever did get there, they would need a much larger force than WALKER ever had under his control, to keep their footing a month on its soil. Veragua is now a pretty-well populated province; and the people are anything but cowards. Santiago, its capital, is a large city, of some 4,000 inhabitants, situated about 30 leagues west from Panama. It is separated from Costa Rica by the province of Chiriqui, also in this State, by more than 200 leagues of mountainous country; and the kind of march a filibustering force would have, to get into Costa Rica, may be gathered from the following account of the province, which I extract from ALCEDO's Dictionary of America, printed at Madrid in 1774.

"Veragua is 70 leagues long from east to west, and 34 wide from north to south, [at this time Chiriqui was included in it,] this being where the Isthmus is widest. It is of a hot temperature, and for the most part mountainous and rough, some of the heights being inaccessible, although there are not wanting llanuras, wherein are found various estates and grazing farms, well stocked with cattle, from the abundance of excellent pasture. In the mountains are found various kinds of excellent wood and plenty of wild beasts, birds and animals. It rains almost continually in this country; and indeed there is scarcely a day passes but that there are showers, attended with violent gusts, and thunder and lightning. In the north part are the mountains, and the rains flowing down from these in various streams, from rivers and pools, render the province almost impassable at certain seasons. Here are many gold mines, from which great wealth has been extracted; but these mines are worked but little at the present day, owing to the excessive expense of conveying materials and provisions over those very craggy sierras, the carriage of an arroba of meal on the shoulders of Indians being equal in its cost to the meal itself. Here are very large herds of cattle, especially of swine. It was originally well-peopled by Doraces, Guaimies and Juries Indians, and with other nations, who lived in the mountains like wild beasts, going naked, both men and women, and subsisting on wild roots, of which there is an abundance; and particularly on a fruit which they call pixbaes, resembling dates, and which roasted, taste very well.

The capital of the Province, Santiago, has a hot and moist temperature, the vicinity abounding in maize, plaintains, yucas, and cattle, and particularly in swine. The natives spin cotton, and dye it in a durable purple by the juice of a snail, found on the sea-coast; and in this article, as well as in some gold which they extract from the mines, does this city carry on a trade with Panama, the capital of the kingdom, and with Guatemala, where both the one and the other article are highly esteemed. This city has a beautiful hospital (an interesting fact to filibusters in a fever country) built at the instance of the inhabitants and of the Bishop of Panama, who made on that subject various representations to the King."

The foregoing geographical information and description is furnished gratis to the "provisional government already organized for the conquest of Veragua," unless the Government will please send me to Panama a chunk of Veragua gold—where ALCEDO says "it is highly esteemed." F. W. R.

News from Hayti.

TRUCE BETWEEN THE EMPEROR SOULOUQUE AND THE DOMINICANS—OFFICIAL ANNOUNCEMENT—THREE FRENCH SAILORS RESCUED—COMMERCIAL AFFAIRS.

Advices from Hayti to the 4th of April are received. Hostilities are suspended between SOULOUQUE and the Dominicans, and the Moniteur Haitien of March 26 thus announces the fact:

"The Minister of Foreign Affairs, by his dispatch bearing date the 19th of February, announces to the Chargé d'Affaires of France, and to Her Britannic Majesty's Consul, that, in compliance with their request, His Majesty the Emperor grants a truce to the inhabitants of the Eastern Department, to extend from February 14th of the present year to the same date in the year 1859. In consequence, orders have been immediately dispatched for the cessation of hostilities along the lines occupied by the posts and garrisons of the imperial government.

"The Minister of Foreign Affairs, by his dispatch of March 19, announces also to the representatives of France and England, that His Majesty permits the Dominicans to travel freely, and attend to all kinds of business, civil and commercial, in every part of the Empire."

Lieutenant-General GUERRIN DE PAONERRA, Count DE [illegible] ROUGE, nominated Minister of the Interior, aide of the Emperor, has arrived at the Capital and entered upon his official duties on the 17th of March.

The Moniteur of March 21 says:

"On Sunday, March 8, a Haytian boat, at the distance of eight leagues from this port, picked up three sailors of the French ship Marie Célestée, who had been blown away in one of the ship's boats in a gale. After being tossed about at sea for several days, without the hope of reaching any port, and just as they were on the point of perishing of hunger, they were providentially rescued by a Haytian fishing boat, manned by two men. This fact coming to the knowledge of the Emperor, he sent for the two fishermen and publicly thanked them."

Port-au-Prince is well supplied with breadstuffs, and a general rise in most articles is noticeable. In Coffee, the receipts are 8,879 bags, which have found buyers at $125@$128. Doubloons are quoted at $346 @$348, and Exchange on Europe at $326@$340.

At Jacmel, two American vessels, the Agate and Golden Gate, of Boston, had arrived during the week ending March 31, with full cargoes. The place is well supplied with breadstuffs, which have slightly risen in price. Coffee is quoted at $114@$118, and Doubloons at $320.

The Religious Press upon Rev. Dr. Bellows' Address on the Theatre.

From the Christian Intelligencer.

UNITARIANISM AND THE THEATRE.

Should we state that a distinguished clergyman of this City had recently made a speech in favor of dissipation, licentiousness, and general popular demoralization, we would probably be thought by many guilty of slander; and yet we do not see how the advocacy of theatres by a noted Unitarian divine can, in effect, be regarded as anything else than an attempt to recommend a form of amusement which, in all times, and in all lands, has uniformly proved detrimental to morals and inimical to virtue. For actors, as a class, we have no words of unkindness. Many of them have been eminent for private moral worth, and more might be, in spite of their profession. Nor will we do so much injustice to Dr. BELLOWS as even to intimate that he would favor the attendant vices of theatrical attainments. He, doubtless, wishes a drama as free from taint, that he and other clergymen might occasionally visit it, and, probably, take part in its performance. But, whatever his ideal drama may or may not be, his speech is interpreted as a defence of the theatre as it now is.

The papers that pander most to the worst passions of the populace are jubilant in praise of the Unitarian smile demitted from the benignant face of the reverend patron of theatricals, and correspondingly violent in their abuse of that Puritanic fanaticism that blindly refuses to aid theatres in promoting drunkenness, profligacy and impurity. The actors have found themselves included in the commiserating sympathies of the "All-Souls" pastor, and they seem to be having a pretty good time of it together. But as one swallow does not make a Summer, it may be well to obtrude a warning word upon the reluctant ears of those who have undertaken to persuade the public that clergymen all should make haste to follow the satisfactory performance of Dr. BELLOWS, and leap into the pit with him, to secure half-naked artists, and profane jesters, and mimic-mockers of virtue and piety. We have not the slightest expectation of seeing a very general competition among clergymen for a share in that bubble of notoriety in which the "All-Souls" luminary is now swimming alone. Nor do we think that any considerable portion of the Christian community will be drawn into any fervent admiration of these schools of vice which have now put themselves under the wing of the Unitarian Apollos. If he wants to go to the theatre, they must allow him the quiet indulgence of his tastes; but so long as thousands of young men, and as many women, are annually initiated into courses of vice and subsequent ruin through the voluptuous enchantments and corrupting accessories of our theatres, there will be a deep conviction among thoughtful people that a clergyman ought not to allow himself to become a decoy for those moral slaughter-houses.

The most significant feature of Dr. BELLOWS' position is the incidental exhibition it affords of the nature and genius of Unitarianism. His speech shows what his notions of religion are. It is a tasteful culture of art, of the softer sciences, and a gentle sentimentality, floating along azure skies, borne by zephyrs, and waited on by pleasure. How strange that a religion so agreeable to human nature should be so slow in gaining its confidence!

From the New-York Observer.

DR. BELLOWS ON THEATRES.

Rev. Dr. BELLOWS delivered a lecture on Tuesday evening at the Academy of Music, in defence of the theatre as a public amusement. The novelty of the thing, the excitement produced by the extraordinary course of the speaker, the notices in the papers, the posters on the walls, it was presumed would draw a crowded house. To the disappointment and chagrin of those concerned, not more than twelve hundred people assembled. Mr. BRADY introduced the distinguished orator of the occasion, "Mr. BELLOWS." He was surrounded upon the stage by several of the well-known actors and actresses, who had come to honor their clerical champion.

Dr. BELLOWS spoke two hours and a half. His argument was that amusement is a necessity and duty of life; the theatre affords the highest and best amusement; it has become corrupt because the church has frowned upon it; if religious people would attend they would reform it, and make it what it should be.

His censures upon the church, the clergy, and "tightly-laced Christians," were severe, and his hits at them, were received with great applause. His gentle rebukes of the stage were for the most part received in grim silence. The audience relished keenly all that was bad, they rarely applauded anything good. It was the saddest moral spectacle we ever looked on: a professed minister of morals, pandering to the diseased appetites of the play-going public; ridiculing and denouncing Christians; receiving applause with greediness from the hands of those who hate the Gospel, and spending his strength in exhorting people to go to the devil's house. The speaker's logic was sophistry, several of his premises absurdly false, his conclusions forced, and the moral effect shocking to the Christian heart.

If we find time, we shall support these charges by reference to passages of the lecture, next week.

From the New-York Evangelist.

DR. BELLOWS' ATTEMPT TO REFORM THE THEATRE.

Dr. BELLOWS seems to think that he should become a mark for all sorts of unkind reflections on the part of the religious press. We cannot insure him exemption from such attacks. In some quarters doubtless his expectations will be realized. A minister of the Gospel defending the Theater, is a novel spectacle, and for those who like an object for their ridicule, is high game not to be overlooked. He may expect many sharp shots at the clergyman whose love of vanity and folly is so invulnerable that it cannot be restrained even by the decencies of his sacred profession.

But whatever treatment he may receive from others, he will receive none from us but perfect courtesy and respect. We know him too well to believe that he is actuated in the expression of his opinions by a love of singularity or a desire of attracting attention. He is above all that. However erratic his notions, we give him full credit for his sincerity, and even for more, for uncommon boldness in the expression of unpopular opinions. On his part, we trust he will do us, and the religious public generally, the justice to believe that our hostility to the Theater does not proceed from bigotry or narrowness of mind. It is not merely dark-browed priests and Puritans who have declaimed against it. The most eloquent condemnation of the Drama ever written was by an infidel and a Frenchman. When it was proposed to establish a theatre at Geneva, JEAN JACQUES ROUSSEAU protested against the attempt, as tending to corrupt the simplicity and morals of the Swiss Republic. At this day the most complete exhibition to be found in the world, of the Theatre, is in Paris; and there the keenest observers, those, too, who have no sanctimonious cant, and who are soured by no gloomy fanaticism, and biased by no religious conviction, tell us that the exhibition of vice on the stage tends to vice in the streets and in the saloons. The acting of tragedies, in which a wild career ends with suicide, familiarizes the mind with this ready cure of "all the ills that flesh is heir to," and leads to many a dark deed of self-murder.

These facts argue against theatrical representations from their natural and unavoidable influence. But if we consider the actual state of the theatre, the argument is much stronger. At present our theatres are not only associated with vice, but live by it, and can hardly be supported without it. And we are afraid the miracle of a pure theatre is not very likely soon to be witnessed. The project of purifying the drama is not new. Social reformers have often dreamed of its regeneration, but have at last given it up as hopeless. Nor can we believe that Dr. BELLOWS will be more successful in an undertaking, which some of the wisest and best men have attempted in vain, and have at last abandoned in despair.

One of Dr. Bellows' Mistakes.

SOUTHPORT, Conn., Thursday, April 30, 1857.

To the Editor of the New-York Daily Times:

The following sentence presents the strangest point made or essayed in behalf of theatrical amusements, in Dr. BELLOWS' apology of two hours and a half:

"It is a terrible fact that the first hundred years of Puritanism in New-England was marked alike by ascetic public manners and the prevalence of vices almost unheard of in our free and more indulgent society; and it is even now asserted that the soberest of our sister States contributes more than any other State in the Union to the sad catalogue of female frailty. [Sensation and applause.]"

It would be idle to point out to reflecting readers, for whom these remarks are designed, the sheer fallacy of the argument attempted in the utterly incongruous, wholly contradictory assertions of that oracular sentence. But it presents almost the only attempt of Dr. B. to illustrate his argument by particular, pertinent facts. And what if, at last, the most pointed of his illustrations should prove utterly fallacious, as well in what it omits as in what it asserts?

It may be safely presumed that "the soberest of our sister States," so equivocally characterised by the question to which Dr. B. gives currency and credit, is the State which, for whatever reason, first attempted to suppress intemperance by prohibitory laws, and most stringent. But whether the recent repudiation of those laws, through some reaction of public sentiment in that State, should deprive it of Dr. B.'s equivocal commendation as "the soberest," and yet according to the decisions of his argument, the frailest "of our sister States," is not necessary to inquire here. Back of that question, and yet by more important, in reference to the subject more immediately under discussion, there is another which he entirely omits from the frame-work of his argument, and evidently ignores in his very thoughts, with a truly refreshing innocence as to the most influential causes of female frailty. It is this. Have not those who, like him, desire and labor to do away with what they pronounce hurtful prejudices of Puritanism against such public amusements as the theatre, the circus, the opera, promiscuous dancing of men and women, &c., been far more successful in the very State to which he refers than in any other part of New England, with the possible exception of the City of Boston, concerning which he ventures upon yet another equivocal

NEW PUBLICATIONS.

"Excel in spirition of Thackeray."
OUT AT LAST.
THE GREAT
LONDON NOVEL.
(From Early Sheets.)
KNAVES AND FOOLS;
OR,
FRIENDS OF BOHEMIA,
A Satirical Novel of London Life.
By
EDWARD M. WHITY.
(The Scourge is Replacement.)
12mo, handsomely bound in cloth. Illustrated. 450 pp. Price $1 25.
From the London Athenæum.
Bohemia, as we suppose every one is aware is a cant word for a section of London life, the men in which belong fellows with much reputation, and many young women very little; by the classes who are named in "Knaves or Fools" their wife journalists and politicians, artists and dancers. Mr. Whity's story moves in this region, and takes its colors. What the story is we shall not blab, except to say that it is vigorous, imaginative, and dramatic enough for Alexandre Dumas.
QUAINTNESS, SATIRE AND AMUSEMENT.
[illegible]
It's Good to be Merry and Wise, do; Forced Orange Blossoms; A Bad Bank; Fancy Fairs; Fast Men; Fast Women; Fast the French the Sooner you Come, in the end; Lions in Flannel; Lake Scenery; Dinner Discourse; Fruitless Trees; Weak Sons and Strong Fathers; Sentimental Life; Dinner and Dessert; London Hermits; Philosophic Gossip; Idle Speculations; Fun Growing in Rooms; The Law of Divorce; Night; Morning; A Mad Story; A True-Love Story; Bohemian Loafing; The Gods Out; Bohemian Politics; Bohemian Language; A Stranger in Parliament; A Widowed Life; Bachelor Life; Facts and Fictions; Morning and Noonday Calls; Southern Back Streets in Bohemia; Man Hunting; The Club—a Quaint Circumlocution; Paradox at Goldsmiths' Institute; Near the Clouds; Judge and Prisoner; Trial; Fire Mirror of a Story; Anti-Bohemian; Concluding; Author Remarks.

NOTICE OF THE AUTHOR,
By Dr. Shelton MACKENZIE,
In the New-York Evening.
"The manner in which Mr. Whity strips Pretense is admirable. He is now editor of the Kathleen Weekly, the leading Liberal journal in the North of Ireland. Mr. Whity has already written many novelettes anonymously in various magazines, and has experience, therefore, in what many novelists are wanting—the conduct of a story. This, his first complete work, is
A SATIRICAL NOVEL
of the most brilliant character, [illegible] with a story and plot which, for quaintness and interest, has been compared to the
CERVANTES JOHNSTONE AND FIELDING, WOLFGANG AND CHARLES READE.
The Second edition of the production having already exhausted at the first edition, the Publishers are compelled to announce that certain Novelties after this date will be filled from the

NEWS OF THE DAY.

By the arrival at this port, yesterday, of the steamship Africa, we receive one week's later news from Europe. Several features of interest are presented. On the 16th ult., Queen VICTORIA was delivered of a Princess, making the ninth child of which she has given birth. Politicians in England were taking a breathing spell after the elections, and in lieu thereof, we have accounts of great festivities in Liverpool, where the corner stone of a New Free Library, to be built at the sole expense of Mr. BROWN, M. P., has been laid. A grand banquet was given to Mr. BROWN, and from many eloquent speeches delivered on the occasion, we select and publish that of Mr. HAWTHORNE as one that will be most interesting to our readers.

Arrests continue to be made in Paris, but there is no very reliable authority for crediting the reports that formidable conspiracies exist to assassinate the Emperor. Secret societies never disappeared from France, and the present "conspiracies" do not seem to be of a worse character.

The Neufchatel question is terribly tedious. The Conferences at Paris are unable to arrange the details of a settlement. France and England, it should, will, for themselves, recognize the independence of Neufchatel, if the States interested do not soon adjust the dispute.

British and French negotiators are hard at work to prevent a quarrel between Mexico and Spain. They have some hopes of success, for they are exciting Spanish fears by representations that a plan exists in the United States to make a diversion on Cuba directly the war breaks out.

Lady FRANKLIN has determined to fit out another Arctic expedition. The London Times suggests that she should be presented by the English people with the Resolute, for the execution of the enterprise.

We have received some very interesting items of news in connection with the war in China. It is announced that Lord ELGIN, the British Commissioner, is instructed to insist on the opening of nine ports to Europeans, instead of five; to demand that Great Britain be placed on an equality with Russia, and be allowed to establish a diplomatic mission at Pekin; that British vessels in China be allowed to put into any port along the coast, and that the establishment of a British military force be permitted in all towns in which a Consular agent will reside. A French journal states that the Chinese are making extensive defensive preparations. France and England will cooperate actively in the war, and Portugal is also making out an expedition to strengthen her power at Macao.

Our Panama correspondent, in a letter which we publish this morning, gives some particulars concerning a new filibustering expedition that has been set on foot in New-Orleans for the invasion of the province of Venezuela, in the Republic of New-Granada. It does not appear, however, that this enterprise offers a very inviting field, the chances of success being slender. Perhaps the geographical and other information furnished by our correspondent may be serviceable to the filibusters whose attention is turned towards this new Eldorado.

By advices from Hayti, of April 4, we learn that a truce of two years has been concluded between the Emperor SOULOUQUE and the Dominicans. The Moniteur Haytien officially announces this temporary cessation of hostilities.

We publish Hon. DAVID WILMOT's letter accepting the Republican nomination for Governor of Pennsylvania. It is long and devoted entirely to a statement and argument of the national issue between the friends of free labor and the movement for the extension of Slavery into Free Territory of the United States. The Kansas question is discussed and the duty of Pennsylvania to take a stand in favor of freedom is strongly urged. A paragraph towards the close of the letter indicates a willingness to favor the views and receive the votes of the American Party. The letter is important as the first indication of the nature of the contest in the approaching State elections.

An order was adopted, in January last, by the Board of Directors of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, for sealing the doors of the merchandise cars, and requiring the conductors of such sealed cars to give a receipt for them when taken from the point of departure, the agent at the destination to return receipts to the conductor. To this requirement the conductors objected, contending that it was putting upon them too great a responsibility; and since Monday last, when the order was first put into operation, a trouble has been brewing, which yesterday resulted in a strike of the conductors along the road. Threatening messages were resorted to by them, and some of the cars were fired upon from the trains. Finally the mob became more violent, and two of them were burned. The disturbance is not yet at an end.

A vote was taken in Massachusetts, yesterday, on the question of the adoption of the Constitution with the amendments that were made here in Feb. last with reference to the State for Senators and Representatives. The vote was very small, but in favor of the adoption of the amendments.

The Courts of Massachusetts, yesterday, M. Justice, Abolitionists, gar warrants, mandamuses and appeals, which has signalized the advent to power of Republicanism rather, (for the power is the question in dispute,) of the new Police Commission, was continued yesterday with undiminished force. Mr. O'CONOR, after a sort of protest from the counsel for the Commissioners, obtained from Judge ROCKWELL an order denying the motion for a mandamus against Judge RUSSELL, pro forma, and then obtained from the same justice an order for a writ of mandamus returnable at a future term. The case before Judge PRESCOTT on the motion for the dissolution of the injunction was postponed. Mr. D. DUDLEY FIELD spoke for the motion, and argued that the injunction should be dissolved on three grounds: 1st, Because the Court has no jurisdiction; 2d, Because the injunction was unconstitutional; 3d, Because it was improvidently granted. Another injunction restraining the Mayor, Aldermen and Commonalty from expending any of the City funds in prosecuting actions against the new Commissioners. The plaintiffs in this case have been granted, because the Comptroller declares there are no funds to spend.

The new City Charter, which became effective yesterday, abolishes two departments and five bureaus, and divides their respective duties among others. The Departments abolished are the Department of Repairs and Supplies, and that of Streets and Lamps. Mr. BELDEN is said to have turned over his books and appurtenances to the City Inspector, with admirable composure of countenance. Mr. SELLAR and his heads of bureaus are not yet quite resigned to their fate. They talk of resisting to the last. The Comptroller has stopped their pay.

"Moving" went on as largely, yesterday, as is usually the case upon the first of May. At noon the City was in a perfect chaos. By midnight all was quiet again, and more men than usually are at that hour were in their own—generally their new houses.

An interesting case was decided, yesterday, by the Marine Court, involving the liability of the Commissioners of Emigration for baggage lost at Castle Garden. The Court held that where baggage was received and checked by them there, they must see to its safe keeping.

The case of the officers arrested on board the alleged steamer Merchant, was to have been heard yesterday before Commissioner MORTON but it was postponed to Thursday next, because the witnesses were before the Grand Jury.

The time for a hearing in the case of Captain VAN VECHTEN, and the others, arrested with the brig Ellen, on Thursday, is not yet named.

RICHARD M. BLATCHFORD, EDWIN D. MORGAN, HENRY EVERSON, ROBERT EMMET, and GUSTAVUS A. COOVER, the Commissioners appointed under the New City Hall Act, were sworn in yesterday by Judge CLERKE, at Special Term.

The Chinese War and the British Ultimatum.

The news which we publish elsewhere establishes, beyond a peradventure, that in despite of Lord PALMERSTON's assertions, and the frequent rumors that the Emperor of China discountenanced the acts of Commissioner YEH, the hostilities at Canton form no longer a local dispute, but have swelled into the importance of a national war. We are informed by a Paris journal that the Chinese are making extensive preparations for defence, and all our information goes to show that they intend to offer a stubborn resistance. By last accounts the British squadron assembled at Hong Kong, only waited for reinforcements to commence operations. These reinforcements are being hurried forward with every possible speed. In the approaching war, France, and probably Portugal, who sends out an expedition to strengthen her power at Macao, will actively coöperate with England, and there is every probability that the contest will be short and the result decisive. For though the Chinese are probably inflated with their apparent successes at Canton, and, having profited by time and experience, are better able to oppose an invasion now than they were during the last war, yet, on the other hand, their enemy, on this occasion, with its swarming fleet of gun-boats of light draft, will be altogether too powerful for John Chinaman to resist with any hopes of success.

According to the accounts brought by the Africa, it appears that Lord ELGIN has been instructed to insist upon nine ports being opened to Europeans instead of five. The British further demand that they be placed on an equality with Russia, and be allowed a diplomatic mission at Pekin; that their trading vessels, when in distress, have the privilege of putting into any place along the coast, and that the establishment of a military force be permitted in all the towns in which a Consul or agent resides. Such, in substance, are the leading features of the new treaty about to be wrested from the Emperor of China at the sword's point. Minor details are left to the judgment of the English Commissioner.

These demands, under the circumstances, are eminently right and proper. The Chinese have so often violated existing treaties and the laws of Nations, that no other but the severest measures will secure protection for foreign commerce and foreign residents within the empire. Beyond this—to take a common-sense view of the subject—we do not believe that the designs of the British extend. An idea, indulged in by a city cotemporary, that they seek to divide the Chinese Dominions and appropriate a portion to themselves, is too absurd to entertain for a moment. That they will secure all the Commercial privileges they can is very probable, but we see no reason to believe that Europe and America will not be able to secure precisely the same.

Some of our London cotemporaries express deep mortification that the United States will not coöperate with France and England in their demands upon China. Our cotemporaries write under a mistaken notion of fact. The United States are with England and France so far as it is at all proper that they should be, as is sufficiently shown by the fact that a Minister Plenipotentiary has been appointed for the express purpose of conducting the fresh negotiations which recent occurrences have made necessary in China. It is not probable that we shall take any part in the pending war, nor is it easy to see what pretext we could readily find for doing so. But we have no doubt that the moral weight of this country will be given to the endeavor to secure a better basis than that which now exists for the commercial intercourse between the Chinese Empire and the Western World.

Bungling Diplomatists.

We concede much to the venerable imbecility of all diplomacy in raising the question at issue between our own Government and that of New-Granada, to the rank of a "difficulty." To speak of it as a serious difficulty, or to hint the possibility of its resulting in a war, would be to outrage common sense, and to do the administration of Mr. BUCHANAN the gross injustice of supposing it either unable to comprehend the simplest questions of international policy, or unwilling to deal justly with a neighboring State against which no pretence of national grievance has been advanced.

The facts at issue between the two Governments are simply two in number. In the first place we have to find out whether the attack upon the passengers on the Panama Railway, which resulted in so dreadful a massacre, and so serious a loss of property, was a war not provoked by the passengers themselves; and in the second place we have to discover how far the New-Granadian Government, whether by supineness, or by direct complicity, has made itself responsible to us for the outrages then committed. We say these facts have to be ascertained—for it is not possible that such a report as was rendered by M. CORWINE, can have been quietly accepted by any Government as the basis of all negotiation on the subject.

The rejection of the treaty proposed by Mr. MOSQUERA to the Government of New-Granada is neither an outrage nor an affront; and there is no more reason for supposing that we shall fall upon New-Granada, with sword and gun, for refusing to accept certain particular propositions therein embodied, than there is for imagining that Great Britain will answer our rejection of the Dallas-Clarendon Treaty by an immediate confiscation of all American property in England, and a sudden blockade of all our Atlantic ports.

The news from New-Granada proves only two things—that the people of that State are in a very bad temper, and that the American Ministers dispatched to them by President PIERCE have done their best to bring about this undesirable result. The pointed moral of the present position is simply identical with that which we drew the other day from a general consideration of our diplomatic service and its actual condition. Consider the case. We have a matter of business to settle with a small but sensitive Spanish-American State—a matter of business which involves considerations very likely to inflame the passions and excite the jealousies of a race accustomed for some time to look upon ourselves as a dangerous and domineering people, perfectly disposed to devour all the Republics of Spanish-America on the first convenient opportunity. It is of great importance to the commerce of the country that this matter should be amicably arranged at the earliest practicable moment; and it is perfectly well understood that in no event are we likely to be permitted to take the thing absolutely into our own hands without such a war as no man in his senses dreams of inciting. What does our sagacious Chief Magistrate—our nominal "Executive"—in these premises? He selects and sends out upon this important mission a man absolutely committed to the extremest notions and the most ridiculous projects of that party in the United States which has done the most to worry all the Spanish race of the New World into a fever of doubt, and fear, and rage—a thorough-paced fillibuster, whose speech is as loose as his notions are lax, and who can no more suppress his appetite for fat slave lands than he can control his hankerings after the applause of Buncombe and the praise of all the pot-houses. This individual goes armed, it would appear, with authority to propose to New-Granada that she should let us take care of her territory, set up a stout sentry-box at either gate of her domain, and generally prepare her, after the accommodating manner of the boa-constrictor, for eventual and easy deglutition. The real and respectable objects of the mission are thrown into the shade by these extraordinary propositions, and when these are rejected, as any man in his senses must have known they would be, our astute diplomatist and his domestic colleagues are ready to cry havoc, and let slip the dogs of war!

Now we refuse to believe that Mr. BUCHANAN means to indorse the conduct of this precious negotiator. We refuse to believe that he intends to accept the odium of Mr. PIERCE's imbecile proceedings in this instance, and we found our refusal to believe this of him on the good sense and independence which he has shown in other cases of equal or greater importance. And we hope most sincerely that, in the appointment of a new Commissioner to adjust this "difficulty," he will give the country earnest of his determination to make the diplomatic service of the United States almost as respectable for efficiency, honesty and common sense, as the agency of a well-established express company, or the staff of a country bank.

The National Hotel Mystery.

It is full time that the mystery of the National Hotel disease should be made the subject of judicial investigation. No proved atrocity could be so alarming as the shrugs and insinuations flying like poisoned arrows through the dark; no false respect for individual interests can longer be permitted to suppress the inquiries that have now become essential to public tranquillity, the national honor, and, perhaps, the security of the life of our Executive. Through the paper that has always been regarded as his own home organ, Mr. BUCHANAN confesses his suspicion of foul play; and after a confirmation of this kind from the quarter least likely to exaggerate such a doubt, our public rumors have intensified into positive charges, and the dark cloud that rested over Washington has taken the precise outline and tangibility of a vast conspiracy to murder.

"There are certain coincidences connected with this subject," says the Pennsylvanian, "which are suggestive of the most horrible suspicions; but for the honor of human nature we hope they may be unfounded." And it then goes on, in its guarded and semi-official way to recite "coincidences" that have never yet received the requisite attention. A "hope" is, by no means, the right weapon for the defence of "the honor of human nature;" and hopes of the kind here faltered, by suggesting enormities beyond the reach of our experience, only serve to throw a blacker doubt over the dark records of proved and attested depravity.

The "coincidences" are indeed extremely curious, and, whether fortuitous or criminal, present a chain of circumstantial evidence that could have been left unfollowed in no other city of the civilized world save Washington alone. The air of our federal capital seems to emasculate the moral nerves; and crimes have been committed there, and quietly hushed up, or trifingly disposed of, that would have raised a thunder-storm if transpiring in any less exalted region.

But now for the coincidences to which, through his own home organ, our Executive seems anxious to direct attention. Mr. BUCHANAN arrived at the National Hotel, Washington, on the 26th of last January. Next day the first case appeared of a new and strange disorder—the symptoms, violent purging, inflammation of the larger intestines and a swollen tongue; giving all the indications of some poison of a mineral nature. Guest after guest was taken down with precisely similar symptoms; and within two days thirty-five of the inmates were so ill as to be confined to bed, and numbers—the President-elect amongst them—were taken dangerously sick, either previous to, or immediately after leaving Washington.

From the date of Mr. BUCHANAN's departure for Wheatland—where he arrived greatly altered and enfeebled—not one single new case of the disease occurred until after the return to the hotel on the 3d of March; but on the day of the Inauguration, this strange disorder reappeared with aggravated virulence and a wider sweep—seven hundred guests or upwards being attacked together, and of these some twenty-five or thirty have since died of its lingering and recurring agonies. The remedies, where successfully employed, were for the most part of the nature of mineral antidotes; and where the disease was treated as one of miasmatic origin, we find the sufferings more protracted and the mortal issue involved in greater doubt.

It has been publicly stated in various reputable papers, and the statement remains uncontradicted to this hour, that "the President received a letter warning him not to partake of food at the National. If so," adds the Albany Argus, "here is evidence of a crime, and perhaps a clue to its discovery. Why is it not pursued?"

The parallel of the English gunpowder-plot, devised by CATESBY and the Jesuits, is here suggested; and the warning said to be received by Mr. BUCHANAN, exactly coincides with the letter sent to Lord MONTEAGLE, ten days before the meeting of Parliament in the houses undermined by FAWKES.

But is not this letter a fabrication designed to round off a parallel that is otherwise complete? Can it be possible that the Chief Magistrate should have received such a letter and yet—even after its dreadful confirmation—persist in taking no legal notice of the monstrous conspiracy to which it might serve as a clue? We would dismiss the supposition as incredible, were it not for the strong language used ("the symptoms uniformly indicating poison") in the paper which, of all others, should be most conversant with Mr. BUCHANAN's opinion. The Pennsylvanian, while giving its official indorsement to the "horrible suspicions," has not one word to say about the letter; and silence in a case of this kind, is, at least, as significant as words.

The disease broke out on Mr. BUCHANAN's first visit: the disease disappeared on Mr. BUCHANAN's departure; the disease returned again with Mr. BUCHANAN, as if it were a shadow that dogged his heels; and Mr. BUCHANAN is said to have received a letter announcing that danger lay in wait for him at the very house where a disease, from which he has not yet recovered—from which he may never recover—overtook and pulled him down. The disease was confined, not only to one house in a crowded city, but to such of the frequenters of that house as partook of food within its walls: the disease presented the same diagnostics in every case, whereas all other epidemics that we know of are modified in different cases by the physical idiosyncracies of the individuals attacked; the disease presented all the symptoms usually resultant in cases of mineral poisoning, and its victims, though scattered to the four climates of the Union, undergo frequent and wasting relapses—a thing not consonant with our experience of miasmatic exhalations, but tending directly to prove that the poison, of whatever kind, is carried in them and has laid fast hold of their systems.

So much for the "coincidences," which we put forward without deducing any theory.

The New City Charter.

Some of the office-holders under the old Charter are not inclined to comply with the provisions of the new, which went into effect yesterday, and abolished their offices. Two Departments and five Bureaus of the City Government become obsolete under the new Charter, as follows:

Commissioner of Repairs and Supplies.
Commissioner of Streets and Lamps.
Superintendent of Roads.
Superintendent of Streets.
Superintendent of Pavements.
Superintendent of Lamps and Gas.
Superintendent of Repairs to Public Buildings.

THE NEW OFFICERS ONLY TO BE PAID.

Comptroller FLAGG, on Thursday, sent the following circular to those whose offices are abolished:

FINANCE DEPARTMENT, COMPTROLLER'S OFFICE,
(No. 5, Hall of Records.)
NEW-YORK, April 2, 1857.

SIR—You are hereby notified to discontinue all work for the Corporation after this date, as no further payments can be made for work done under you after April 30, 1857.

Yours respectfully,
A. C. FLAGG, Comptroller.

The Commissioner of Repairs and Supplies, with Heads of Bureaus in his Department are loth to part with their places. They have determined to resist the Charter to the last. This department is merged into those of the Croton Aqueduct and the Street Commissioner, and should such course become necessary, they will take legal steps to compel Mr. SELLAR & Co., to transfer to them the books and papers. Of the necessity, however, there is great doubt, for without the salaries the work in the Department of Repairs and Supplies will soon be discontinued, and the Comptroller says as the provisions of the Charter are constitutional, he will not pay a cent except to the proper officers.

BELDEN'S END—HIS DEPARTMENT.

Yesterday afternoon Mr. BELDEN turned over his Department promptly to that of the City Inspector, who immediately entered upon its duties.

The Health Officers of the several Wards, with the exception of the Sixth, Twelfth, and part of the Twenty-Second, have reported to him the number of houses in their several wards before which ashes and garbage of all sorts is habitually thrown into the streets, as follows:

| Wards. | Houses. | Wards. | Houses. | Wards. | Houses. |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| 1 | 379 | 9 | 66 | 17 | 159 |
| 2 | 102 | 10 | 159 | 18 | 825 |
| 3 | 92 | 11 | 749 | 19 | 948 |
| 4 | 100 | 13 | 151 | 20 | 797 |
| 5 | 146 | 14 | 629 | 21 | 537 |
| 6 | 349 | 15 | 523 | 22 | 31 |
| 8 | 612 | 16 | 391 | | |
| Total | | | | | 6,635 |

Many of these houses are occupied by thirty or forty families, but taking as an average five families in a house, it shows that over 30,000 people are liable to arrest for this nuisance, yet not one has been taken into custody. The Police say that it is of no use to make arrests, for the magistrates will not punish. The City Inspector says that this state of things shall continue no longer. He will instruct the Police to make the arrests, and if the magistrates refuse to punish he will take the case before the Grand Jury.

Mr. MORTON says he is determined to render every facility in his power to the street contractors, and protect them in their rights—though their contracts still remain unconfirmed by the Common Council—so long as they perform their duties. The contractors may suffer pecuniarily, because the Corporation omits to have the ashes and garbage removed. The street mud and manure pay the street cleaners 25 cents per load, but if ashes and "refuse" become mixed with it, the cost to them to remove it is from 6 to 9 cents per load.

Mr. MORTON hopes to make a radical reform in the conduct of the markets, and make them pay their expenses, if not yield a revenue to the City. At present there is no system at all in their management. Some holders of stalls pay a heavy rent while others pay a mere nominal sum. He proposes to affix to each stall a regular rent, and to prevent its transfer by the lessee to other parties, by which process the City has been greatly swindled in times past. The markets are also to be thoroughly renovated. If the City Inspector does all that he has said he will do, the thanks of all good citizens will be his.

CITY FINANCES—PAYMENTS OF STOCKS AND BONDS.

Yesterday was the day for those holding City Stock and Bonds to draw their interest money, and during business hours the Shoe and Leather Dealers' Bank was crowded. The amount paid by the City Chamberlain was $[illegible], the total of Stock and Bonds issued by the City, upon which the Corporation is now paying interest, is $[illegible]. With the exception of $[illegible], only five per cent is paid. The [illegible] from the 25th of April down to the present time, the City Chamberlain has received $[illegible] on the new revenue bonds. He will continue to dispose of them until about the middle of July, unless the amount of money required shall have been previously obtained. With the money now on hand he is paying the salaries of officers and some of the City's old debts.

By Telegraph to the New-York Daily Times.

FROM WASHINGTON.

Proposed Reform in the Matter of Public Printing—Condition of the Treasury, &c.

Special Dispatch to the N. Y. Daily Times.

WASHINGTON, Friday, May 1.

The States, Major HUNT' new paper, proposed a reformation in the present corrupt system of disposing of the Public Printing. A National Convention of the Democratic Journalists is to be called, to suggest a fairer mode of action. The cost of the public printing has risen in a few years from $600,000 to $1,500,000 per annum—a monstrous corruption and fraud.

There was a fight in the Post-Office Department to-day. WHARTON, an ex-clerk, whipped SPRIGGS, a clerk. No pistols were used. X. Y. Z.

[FROM OUR REGULAR TELEGRAPHIC REPORTER.]

WASHINGTON, Friday, May 1.

There are twenty-three and a quarter millions of dollars in the Treasury subject to draft. Three and a half millions of this amount is on deposit at Boston, nearly the same amount in New-Orleans, and upwards of ten millions in New-York. Two millions of the last are to be transferred.

The End of the Chaplin Slave Case—The First Conspiracy.

WASHINGTON, Thursday, April 30.

The end of Mr. CHAPLIN's attempt to abduct slaves from this city was reached yesterday, after the lapse of several years.

This affair made some noise at the time. CHAPLIN was released upon bail given here by DAVID A. HALL, SELDY PARKER, and BLANCHARD, printer of the National Era, in the sum of $6,000. But CHAPLIN was subsequently arrested in Maryland, and was there released on bail in the sum of $20,000. To secure the bail in this city, the sum of $5,000 was placed in the hands of DAVID A. HALL. But this sum was paid over by him for the purpose of meeting the demand for the surrender in Maryland. After the bail here had been forfeited, the abolition friends of CHAPLIN paid a portion of the amount and promised to raise the rest, but never did it.

The government levied two or three years ago, on BLANCHARD's printing materials, and DAVID A. HALL's lots, and SELDY PARKER's fancy goods store, for the balance due, but indulged them, from time to time, while they endeavored to induce BLANCHARD's friends to make good their promises. Recently, Mr. SELDY PARKER, a very worthy citizen, becoming embarrassed, made a deed of trust upon his stock in trade, in favor of his New-York creditors. A sale commenced, the day before yesterday, of his goods under this deed. But pending this, the United States Marshal stepped in, with his prior claim, under an unsatisfied execution, and swept off every thing for the government. The debt due was two thousand dollars, and the property sold for enough to cover this sum and the heavy expenses.

The Abolitionists must have lost some of their zeal in the cause, when they thus fail to redeem their most positive engagements, with men not of their party, and who are not as rich as they, but actually poorer.

Mr. MEHRL was introduced, to-day, by Mr. WHITTEMORE, as his successor in the office of First Comptroller. It is true that the President has expressed some concern at the interference of the Attorney-General with Mr. WHITTEMORE's decision on the Ramsey and Cornick case. He says, truly, that to the first Comptroller belongs absolutely, without appeal, the decision of the case. Mr. WHITTEMORE knows the extent of his legal authority; but, on the eve of his retirement from office, he did not choose to go into a fight with the Postmaster-General and the Attorney-General, on the subject. He has merely left for them and for his successor, "a little book to look upon." It is a perfect brief of the case, and his own construction of the law, and his opinion of the impropriety of the attempted interposition of the Attorney-General and the Postmaster-General. X. ### Pennsylvania Legislature.

REPORT OF THE SENATE SELECT COMMITTEE ON THE DRED SCOTT CASE.

HARRISBURG, Friday, May 1.

The majority of the Select Committee of the Senate on the resolutions in the Dred Scott case have made a lengthy and able report, accompanied with resolutions declaring that the opinion of the Supreme Court announces principles in palpable opposition to the judicial and legislative history of the Union, and in violation of the plain provisions of the Constitution of the United States; that the opinion, except on the question of jurisdiction, being delivered on a case over which the Court admitted it had no jurisdiction, may be justly regarded as obiter dictum non judice, and inoperative as law; that the five judges who concurred in the same opinion made a wanton attack on the sovereignty of the Free States, and an impotent attempt to nullify the established laws of the country, and by extra-judicial action caused unnecessary excitement in the public mind in regard to the subject of Slavery, and thereby forfeited the confidence and respect due to their exalted station.

Strike of the Conductors on the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad.

BALTIMORE, Friday, May 1.

The strike among the freight conductors on the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, partook of a serious character yesterday. Several freight trains were stopped on the road last evening by a mob of about one hundred conductors, who were assembled at some distance from the city, and on meeting the cars, while in motion, they uncoupled the trains, carried off all the couplings, and drove the engineers and firemen into the woods. There was great excitement during the day all along the road. The strike was very general throughout the line of the road. Efforts are being made to induce the engineers to join the strikers. The Company has refused to compromise with the men, and will immediately pay them all off and employ new hands. The strike is in consequence of sealing the cars, which has given offence to the conductors.

LATER—THE RIOTERS FIRED UPON AND TWO OF THEM WOUNDED.

The strike on the Baltimore and Ohio Road resulted in a very serious riot this afternoon. Four freight trains were started out in charge of armed guards, in obedience to the proclamation of the Governor issued to-day. All the trains were mobbed near Ellicott's Mills by the rioters. Some thirty muskets were fired from the cars, and two of the rioters wounded. One train got through, but the others were uncoupled by the rioters and had to return to the city.

The Case of McKim.

VOTE IN FAVOR OF THE PROPOSED AMENDMENTS OF THE MASSACHUSETTS CONSTITUTION—MARINE DISASTER.

BOSTON, Friday, May 1.

The vote in the State, to-day, on the House Constitutional amendments is small, but they are all adopted by decisive majorities. Boston gave 900 majority for the reading and writing amendment, and 4,000 for those districting the State for Senators and Representatives. New-Bedford voted against the reading and writing amendment.

Arrived at New-Bedford, yesterday, ship John Griffin, from Honolulu. Fell in with, on the morning of the 23d ult., schr. James T. ### Receipts of Flour and Grain.

CHICAGO, [illegible]

The Flour and Grain receipts at this place since the opening of navigation in May 1, are [illegible] of Flour; 197,000 bushels of Wheat; [illegible] of Rye, and 6,000 bushels of Barley.

THE PENNSYLVANIA ELECTION.

Hon. David Wilmot's Letter Accepting the Nomination for Governor.

From the Philadelphia Daily Times.

GENTLEMEN: On my return home, [illegible] since of two weeks, I found your [illegible] informing me of my nomination as [illegible] office of Governor, by a Convention of the [illegible] of Pennsylvania, opposed to the leading measures of the late and present National Administrations, and assembled at the State Capital on the 15th, together with a copy of the declaration of principles promulgated by that Convention.

I accept the position to which I am [illegible] unsolicited suffrage of the body whose [illegible] profoundly grateful for so distinguished a mark of the confidence of my fellow-citizens, yet painfully [illegible] of my inability properly to meet the responsible obligations.

The approaching election is vast in its importance. Important questions of [illegible] affecting the public welfare and [illegible] are involved in the issue presented. The largest and most powerful of the States of our confederate Republic, the Keystone State of Pennsylvania are deeply concerned in the issue that animate our National Government, and [illegible] with safety to our independence and the liberties of our people, be indifferent to the [illegible] of national import in progress of [illegible] questions touching [illegible] Federal Government, and vitally [illegible] and rights of free labor. Nor can [illegible] honor, withhold her protest against [illegible] forced upon her soil in a direct violation of the Union of Federal authority.

The dearest rights of freemen, [illegible] constitutional guarantees, are [illegible] call of our national [illegible] the victims of a hyena [illegible] spoilers of the Old World. The [illegible] Christian nations [illegible] on the plea of an [illegible] cause, such as has been [illegible] by the [illegible] Russia, unless they be found in [illegible] Huguenots under Louis XIV. [illegible] Protestants of the Netherlands, by the [illegible] under Philip II., King of [illegible] tunities to which the people of [illegible] proud wave of a character so [illegible] humanity in the minds of a [illegible] citizens. Thousands have been [illegible] lief that, for positive purposes, [illegible] tated for facts; although no [illegible] story are better authenticated [illegible] robberies, arson, and lawless [illegible] the free settlers of Kansas. These [illegible] their object the subjugation of that [illegible] curse of slavery.

We speak of quiet being restored to [illegible] armed bands of lawless men [illegible] fest her highways and plunder [illegible] her towns are not [illegible] in the [illegible] tion in Kansas. This peace is deceptive. It will be broken the moment [illegible] one make a vigorous effort to recover [illegible] which they have been [illegible] prived. The purposes of [illegible] ly manifested. A system of [illegible] tried fraud, hindered to that extent [illegible] tion under which she now groans [illegible] gest for the consummation of this [illegible] this and also, the power of the [illegible] is barely practicable. We are [illegible] mass, but preparation is [illegible] applications of the President [illegible] workers in the [illegible]

Principles of eternal truth are [illegible] the foundation of a character [illegible] which govern the rights of [illegible] enacted by the power that [illegible] Government. These truths, [illegible] ral and inalienable rights [illegible] great charter of our liberties, are [illegible] highest judicial authority in [illegible] The sanctuary of our homes of [illegible] against an entire race of men. The [illegible] freedom are not allowed to [illegible] the rights of [illegible] that should most nearly concern [illegible] tribunals of the Government and [illegible]

In view of these most [illegible] perpetrated against the rights of [illegible] ship, and the dangers to which our [illegible] passed—that presented in its true [illegible] before us assumes a dignity [illegible] affairs; and imposes duties upon [illegible] and reason as ever appealed to the [illegible] sciences of men. The question [illegible] demands there is no neutral [illegible] for the right or for the wrong. [illegible] verdict of this great Commonwealth [illegible] nounced on the issues [illegible] advocates of human bondage. [illegible] that verdict of her unerring honor, or to [illegible] lasting shame.

The repeal of the Missouri Restriction, [illegible] attempt to force slavery upon Kansas by [illegible] violence, precipitated upon the country a [illegible] between the antagonistic systems of slave [illegible] labor. In the issue of this conflict, [illegible] Democratic character of our institutions [illegible] ment, and the independence, dignity [illegible] the free white laboring men and [illegible]

Slavery is the deadly enemy of free [illegible] cannot coexist on the same field of [illegible] labor will whatever the right to the [illegible] into desuetude and disuse. Free [illegible] with intelligence and power. It [illegible] city of a true manhood. It [illegible] all the noble impulses of [illegible] degrading social life. It is the [illegible] to industry by the lash of a [illegible] both on herself, in the [illegible] ready to defend with his life the [illegible] of his country, Slavery gives to [illegible] savage to be held in subjection [illegible] civil force by converting the great [illegible] into an impassable enemy.

Now, in the history of northern [illegible] more unjustly and [illegible] are the opponents of the extension of Slavery [illegible] arises in part from the intolerance of Slavery [illegible] and the vanguard it is necessary [illegible] gently from the field. [illegible] Power becomes in our Government [illegible] its every demand is made the [illegible] delity, and the only road to office [illegible] citizen who dissents in issues of [illegible] protest against whatever [illegible] because thereby, in so far as the [illegible] must can impose disabilities, absent as much as [illegible] and outlaw us in the slave [illegible] If the freemen of the North consent to occupy such a [illegible] nate position in the Government of [illegible] the spirit of manly independence will [illegible] out in their posterity. Our [illegible] a subservient and servile race, [illegible] hood and of self-respect. The [illegible] prietor of the soil and master of the [illegible] expansion, will dominate over [illegible] of arrogance and power than [illegible] tary bondmen. To this [illegible] holding whites of the South [illegible] have to day little more power in the [illegible] public opinion and in the offices of Government than [illegible] has the slave. The same fate awaits our posterity if Slavery is allowed to monopolize the virgin soil of this continent. It is the inevitable [illegible] Heaven on any people that have not the courage and integrity to maintain their rights.

It is a slander to say that the advocates of the rights of free labor seek the elevation of the black race to an equality with the white. They do not propose the emancipation of the slave, but have made question, both as to time and the mode of emancipation, with the States in which Slavery exists. They wish to deal with this great evil in a spirit of friendly forbearance [illegible] States; but they cannot carry their [illegible] far as to virtually assume slavery [illegible] surrender the soil and government of [illegible] the hands of an aristocracy formed [illegible] slaves.

Free white labor has rights in the soil [illegible] the protections of Slavery. The [illegible] plea claims that his property [illegible] slaves, will deprecate unless the [illegible] employ it be enlarged. The white [illegible] a property in his labor, quite as [illegible] of the care of the Government; and [illegible] upon which he is to make their [illegible] himself and family if Slavery shall [illegible] the soil upon which it is implanted. The [illegible] labor is small, compared with [illegible] have labor to sell, the [illegible] this diverted land [illegible] demands as a second [illegible] boring men and his property [illegible] extend and engross the [illegible] government. These [illegible] have been thrown [illegible] land. On the one side [illegible]

[illegible] Alexandre Organ is not a very remarkable instrument. It is an imitation of the melodeon, but by no means an improvement on it. For the parlor, the concert-room, or the church, better instruments are turned out every day at PRINCE'S Melodeon Manufactory. A prophet is not without honor, save in his own country; but Messrs. PRINCE & CO. have no reason to be dissatisfied with a comparison between the organ-melodeon and the Organ Alexandre. Good judges consider the home instrument the better one, and let the two be placed in competition side by side, we, for one, have no fear for a Buffalo victory.—Buffalo Commercial Advertiser.

[illegible] Yesterday, that parties were [illegible] fashion of hanging about all this, and that it required a very extraordinary judge of music to appreciate the new instrument. People who went to the concert on Saturday night were amazed that this epitome of thunder should have but a single place on the programme; but they were more amazed when they heard a bad imitation of a melodeon, fifing away in a mixed up, muddled, irregular manner, on a theme said to be the "Miserere," from "Il Trovatore, and a veritable mi ery it was.

THE TREATMENT OF CONSUMPTION
BY
ALLOPATHY, HOMŒOPATHY, WATER-CURE
AND
MEDICATED INHALATION.
PRACTICALLY REVIEWED
BY
ROBERT HUNTER, M. D.,
Consulting Physician for Pulmonary Diseases, (220 Broadway, New-York.)

[Continued from Thursday's Tribune. The Review in full may be obtained at the PUBLISHERS, SHERMAN & CO., No. 1 Vesey street, Astor House. Price 10 cents.]

ARGUMENT ON TREATMENT.

"We discover into man that they would give over jetting; and not imagine that so great a work as the stopping and turning back the powerful course of nature can be brought to pass by some morning draught or the taking of some precious drug; but they would be assured that it must needs be that this is a work of labor, and consisteth of many remedies and a fit connection of them among themselves. For no man can be so stupid as to imagine that what was never yet done can be done, but by such ways as were never yet attempted."—LORD BACON.

This language of Lord Bacon is peculiarly applicable to the treatment of Consumption. The treatment heretofore employed, whether Allopathic, Homœopathic or Water-Cure, has alike signally failed, and if this disease is ever cured it will be by the adoption of some new and comparatively untried method of treatment. This opinion is not singular, but appears to have been entertained by most physicians who have carefully investigated the pathology and treatment of the disease.

☞ "Look," says Magendie, "at pulmonary phthisis for example; there is an affection which you see, day after day, cutting off individuals of every age, of every sex, and of every rank, yet none has been more carefully studied on the old plan, none has proved a more fruitful source of dogma and disquisition. Eminent observers have described all its phenomena even to the minutest details. But what is all this but description, but so much natural history. Will it throw any light on the treatment of the affection? Not a particle! but we hope for enlightenment in this respect. We must learn the causes of the disease, nor need we despair of discovering it. Perhaps tubercular matter may yet be detected in the blood, and, as a further step, the means of destroying or preventing its formation ascertained."—Magendie's Lectures on the Blood, p. 18.

Professor Carswell, the distinguished Pathologist, observes on the same subject, "it may not be too much to hope that by means of a more intimate knowledge of organic chemistry, we may yet be able to detect in the mucous secretions, or in the blood, those changes which indicate the existence of the tuberculous diathesis, and thus perhaps be led to discover a remedy for the disease before it has effected its localization and produced changes in themselves incurable." (Cyclo. Med.) The hope that such remedy might yet be discovered appears to have been generally entertained, for though Dr. Chapman of Philadelphia, a few years ago, proclaimed the idea of curing consumption by any remedy then known—"a delusion"—even he did not think it either impossible or improbable that some improved method of treatment would, in time, be found out.

It would seem, to, that of late years, as our knowledge of the essential nature of tubercular deposits became improved, many distinguished physicians almost simultaneously turned their attention to the lungs and to the consideration of the feasibility of reaching the malady more successfully through this channel. Notwithstanding the failure of some experiments instituted by himself to test the merits of chlorine gas as an inhalant, Sir John Forbes, the distinguished editor of the British and Foreign Medico Chirurgical Review, tells us in an article on asthma that "years, months, and even years seem to justify the following question." And Professor Carpenter, of the University of London, the distinguished Physiologist, still more strongly urges upon the profession the importance of directing their efforts to the discovery of some "counteracting agent" which may be administered through the extended absorbing surface of the lungs

AGRICULTURAL.

FIELD AND GARDEN SEEDS,
AT THE NORTH RIVER AGRICULTURAL WAREHOUSE,
GRIFFING, BROTHER & CO.,
No. 66 Cortlandt-st., New-York.

GENTLEMEN HAVING COUNTRY SEATS AND GARDENS WILL FIND THE ABOVE FOUNDERS one of the best fertilizers, as well as the cheapest substitute for manure, where there is difficulty in procuring sufficient for garden and farm purposes. Its chief recommendations are, that it is neat, inoffensive, contains no seeds of weeds, is very quick and powerful in its operation upon vegetation, and at the same time is so harmless that it may be put in direct contact with the seed or plant without injury, which is totally unlike other fertilizers. It will bring early crops of peas, beans, potatoes, sweet corn, &c., and for lawns and grass plots is unrivaled. The small quantity need and ease of application render it very economical. The price for 1 barrel is $3; 5 barrels, $5; and $1 50 per bbl. for any quantity over 5 barrels, delivered free in the City. A pamphlet will be forwarded by mail, or furnished gratis on application. Address THE LODI MANUFACTURING COMPANY, No. 60 Cortlandt-st., New-York.

GARDEN PLANTS AND FLOWERS—COMprising roses, honeysuckles, dahlias, verbenas, petunias, heliotropes, fuchsias, carnations, pinks, &c., &c., in great variety and in fine condition, fresh every day from the nursery of P. HENDERSON, at the seed store No. 7 John-st. Every facility for packing and shipping. Catalogues on application.

LAWN GRASS SEED.—A FINE MIXTURE of reliable English and American seed for lawns and grass plots. Red Antwerp raspberries, a variety of strawberry plants, dwarf pear trees, peach trees, &c. For sale at the Union Agricultural Warehouse and Seed Store. H. RALPH, No. 20 Fulton-st.

TO FARMERS.—THE POUDRETTE MADE by the subscribers is the cheapest and best manure in the world for corn and vegetables. A pamphlet will be sent (free) to any one sending their address to the Lodi Manufacturing Company, No. 60 Cortlandt-st., New-York City.

GROCERIES AND PROVISIONS

| USE | THE | BEST. |
|---|---|---|
| JAMES | JAMES PYLE'S DIETETIC SALERATUS is acknowledged by all who try it, the purest and best article in use. It is entirely free from the caustic impurities of common saleratus, so destructive to the digestive organs, while, for making Biscuit, Cake, and all kinds of Pastry, admirably light, it excels the best baking soda, and requires less shortening to produce the desired richness. Parents who regard their children's health should try no other. It is sold at all the groceries, in one pound, half pound and quarter pound packages, with the name of JAMES PYLE thereon, without which none is genuine. ## PROPOSALS.

NAVY AGENT'S OFFICE, (CORNER WILLIAM-ST. AND EXCHANGE-PLACE,) NEW-YORK, April 27, 1857.

TRANSPORTATION OF STORES—PROPOSALS WILL BE RECEIVED AND INDORSED.—Proposals for freight to Hong Kong will be received at this office until 12 o'clock SATURDAY, the 2d day of May, 1857, for the transportation of 2,500 barrels, more or less, of Government Stores from the Navy Yard, Brooklyn, New-York, to the United States Naval Store Keeper at Hong Kong, in China, or the senior naval officer present. The offers must state the price asked per barrel, without distinction between wet and dry; and each barrel, or two half barrels of bread, beef, pork, flour, rice, dried apples, pickles, sugar, butter, beans, molasses, vinegar or whisky, will be considered and paid for as a barrel, whether it be a whisky barrel or a barrel of smaller capacity. All other packages to be estimated at the rate of 24 cubic feet to a barrel, whatever they may contain, and in the measurement of all such other packages the fifths will be included. No preference will be allowed at each of the ports of New-York and Hong Kong, for taking in and discharging cargo. Payments to be made by any Navy Agent in the United States, to be selected by the bidder and designated in the charter party within thirty days after producing satisfactory evidence of the delivery of the cargo. The vessel must stand A No. 1, and be a first-class clipper ship, and pass the usual inspection by the surveyors as may be appointed by the Commissioner at the Yard at Brooklyn, and be at the Yard on or before the 6th day of May next, ready to receive her cargo, and if not presented for examination within three days after being notified of her acceptance, the Department will consider itself at liberty to offer the freight to the next lowest bidder, or to make such arrangements as may best subserve the public interest. And if the vessel shall not sail (wind and weather permitting) within five days after the Government stores are placed on board and the bills of lading signed, there shall be deducted from the freight money a sum equal to the amount demanded as demurrage for each and every delay in sailing beyond the said five days.

GEORGE N. SANDERS, Navy Agent.

SEALED PROPOSALS WILL BE RECEIVED at the office of the Clerk of the Board of Education, corner of Grand and Elm sts. (and nowhere else), until the 12th day of May next, at 12 o'clock M., for the coal and wood required for the PUBLIC SCHOOLS of this City for the ensuing Winter,—say 1,800 tons of coal, 1,500 cords of oak wood, and 500 cords of pine wood, more or less. The coal must be of the best quality of white ash furnace and stove, "lump" coal, in good order, and 2,240 pounds to the ton, weighed by a person selected by the committee, and delivered in the bins at the several school-houses.

The proposals must state the mines from which it is proposed to supply the coal, and the price for furnace size and stove size.

The wood to be of the best quality, and delivered, properly cut, split and piled, in the school-yards, as may be designated by the proper authority. The pine wood to be best Virginia pine, not less than 3 feet 6 inches in length, and the oak wood not less than 3 feet long, and the sticks not less than 3 inches in diameter.

The proposals must state the price per cord of 128 cubic feet solid measure, for pine and for oak, and also the price per cut for sawing and splitting each load.

The wood will be inspected and measured by the Inspector of Fuel of the Board of Education, and coal and wood to be delivered at the [illegible] as follows: two-thirds of the quantity of each [illegible] the 1st of May to the 20th of July, and [illegible] required by the committee; two-thirds of the [illegible] coal from the 20th of July to the 1st of October, 1857, and the remainder as required by the committee. Said contract to be binding until the 1st of May, 1858.

Security for the faithful performance of the contract will be required, and each proposal must be accompanied with the names and signatures of the proposed sureties.

of the City of New-York, against Ap[illegible] requiring the City Funds to pay Counsel to oppose the New Police Commissioners.

The People, by the Attorney-General of the State, vs. Abraham D. Russell, City Judge.—An alternative mandamus was granted against the defendant by Judge Roosevelt on Tuesday evening, the object of which was to compel the Judge to act as Police Commissioner under the old law. Judge Russell, it is almost needless to say, is, as City Judge, one of the old Commissioners, and being opposed to the recent attempt to reorganize the Police Department and appointing new Commissioners, he is understood to have refused to recognize its validity, and expressed his determination not to act in conformity with it. The present action was brought, avowedly with the cooperation of Mayor Wood, to instruct the Court now, on eventually, to declare that he was bound to recognize no authority but that of the old Police law, under which, by way of constitutionality, he has refused to sit as a Commissioner.

The mandamus was returnable yesterday (Friday) morning, Mr. O'Conor opposed and said he was ready to go on with the case against the defendant, and was prepared upon a written memorandum of the Attorney-General. Mr. Tilden also appeared for Judge Russell, and requested that the new Commissioners, stated to be engaged in the Salmon Dry Dock case, and desired that the motion be adjourned. After some argument, the case was set down for 3 o'clock in the afternoon.

The letter which is addressed to the new Commissioners, and their reply thereto, are as follows:

LETTER FROM THE CITY JUDGE TO THE NEW POLICE COMMISSIONERS.

TUESDAY, April 30, 1857.

GENTLEMEN: Under the new act, familiarly called the Metropolitan Police bill, certain powers are, or purport to be, granted to you and to the Mayors of New-York and Brooklyn, as a Board of Commissioners to govern the Police of a new and anomalous district specified in said act.

In common with the great mass of my fellow-citizens, I entertain the opinion that that act, in its whole length and breadth, is repugnant to the Constitution of this State, and, by consequence, is absolutely, and in all its parts, void.

The Attorney-General has commenced against you an action, in the nature of a quo warranto, for the purpose of obtaining a judgment in the appropriate tribunal, on the question of right involved in this controversy.

That the public interest required this course on their part, I mean can doubt. That the public interest demanded from you the fullest cooperation in bringing the issue thus presented to a prompt decision, is to my mind quite clear.

The counsel for the State have offered you every facility for forwarding this object, and it is quite manifest that, with the greatest convenience to yourselves, you could, if so disposed, obtain a final hearing at a general term of the Supreme Court within a few days.

It is equally clear that a hearing could be had in the Court of Appeals on the first day of its session in June next.

The judgment of that Court would be final, and if in your favor, I will also now object to your assumed official action, including myself, would be obliged to acquiesce.

To my great surprise I learn that, through your counsel, you have declined to accelerate the proceedings, and that you purpose employing your counsel and the time of the Courts in discussions touching the mere forms of procedure, and in struggles to acquire the liberty of acting in an official capacity during the controversy, which you, as defendants, may protract for many months. I deem it important to the public that the disputed question of right as to the exercise of authority by the Police of this City should be promptly decided. My constituents are essentially interested in procuring such a decision; the public, pecuniarily, morally, and as one of their officers directly implicated in the question, it becomes me to do everything in my power toward accomplishing that result.

My personal and official relations to this question afford conclusive reasons for such a course on my part.

The laws in force when the Metropolitan Police bill was passed, charged me with the office and duties of a Police Commissioner of the City of New-York.

If the new bill is void, I am bound still to act as such Police Commissioner under the preexisting law. If it is valid, I am forbidden so to do. Whether I act or refuse to act I may be liable to censure.

To relieve me from this embarrassment, and at the same time to relieve the public interest from the jeopardy in which it is involved by your refusal to meet the question, the Attorney-General has prosecuted against me a writ of alternative mandamus, a copy of which is now furnished to you.

I shall claim on the record, by a demurrer or otherwise, that the new bill afforded me a sufficient warrant for a refusal to act under the former law. This will raise the constitutional question, and I shall instruct my counsel to hasten proceedings, and procure an early decision from the Court of Appeals.

Of course my counsel will not argue your side of this question, for I do not believe in the soundness of the position you have taken. But if you decline, they will present the points, and carry the case to final judgment.

My object in addressing you is two-fold:

First—I wish to place myself in my true position before the public as an opponent of your course. The forms of law which are necessarily resorted to for the purpose in hand might mislead, if this letter were not written.

Second—I think it proper to offer you the control and management of my defence in the mandamus against me, except that I will not sanction any steps deferring or delaying justice. Your counsel may dictate the forms of the pleadings on my part, as far as shall be consistent with a waiver of all objections of mere form and with the measure of expedition required. They may present the question of constitutional law in any form they shall think fit, and at every stage of the action until final judgment in the Court of Appeals. They may conduct the litigation, and, if they can, maintain by argument, if they can, that you, in conjunction with the Mayors of New-York and Brooklyn, are lawfully constituted the Board of Police Commissioners, and entitled to exercise the powers which were vested in me as Police Commissioner ex officio. For this purpose it is only necessary that they attend in Court to-morrow morning.

I am, gentlemen, with great respect, your obedient servant, ABRAHAM D. RUSSELL, City Judge.

To SIMEON DRAPER, JAMES BOWNE, JAMES W. NYE, JACOB THORNELL and JAMES R. T. BERMAMAN, Esqs.

The following letter was dispatched yesterday morning by the counsel of the new Police Commissioners, as their

REPLY TO JUDGE RUSSELL.

NEW-YORK, Friday, May 1, 1857.

SIR:—Your letter of the 30th April, addressed to the five members of the "Board of Police for the Metropolitan Police District of the State of New-York," who hold commissions from the Governor of the State, handed to one of those Commissioners between the hours of 4 and 5 o'clock P. M. of yesterday, has, by reason of its allusions to the counsel of that Board, been handed to us by that Commissioner.

We know of nothing to justify the assertions of your letter of any delay on the part of the Board of Police, or of any of their counsel, in meeting any questions raised for adjudication respecting their title to the office filled by the Executive appointment.

The proposition of your letter that the Counsel of the Board of Police should take the peculiar part assigned to us in a proceeding between Mr. Wood and yourself, confirmed by your letter to be prepared for that purpose, and not to arise from any difference of interest or opinion between you, is an invitation to aid in a collusive litigation to the end of obtaining a fraudulent judgment.

We perhaps treat the suggestion with more attention than it deserves or was expected to receive, in giving positive an answer that the only course we shall take in reference to the proceeding your letter has brought to our notice, will be, in our duty as Commissions of the Supreme Court, to lay the evidence of the character of the litigation before the Court.

Yours, respectfully,

WM. M. EVARTS, DAVID DUDLEY FIELD,
WM. CURTIS NOYES, E. B. CUTTING,
JOSHUA M. VAN COTT.

To Hon. A. D. RUSSELL, City Judge.

In compliance with the terms of the adjournment, Judge ROOSEVELT took his seat on the Special Term bench at three o'clock in the afternoon, for the purpose of hearing argument on the motion for a mandamus against the City Judge.

Mr. Malcolm Campbell, on behalf of the Judge, read his answer.

Mr. O'Conor—To that answer there is interposed a general demurrer.

Mr. Campbell—To that I put in a rejoinder demurrer.

Mr. O'Conor—Now, if your Honor please, in this case I move, on behalf of the people, for judgment; and it is for your Honor to consider whether the most expedient disposition of the case is to hear an argument upon it, or to give judgment pro forma, so that the first argument can be before the General Term. I am indifferent as to what course your Honor may see fit to take.

The Judge—This mandamus, if I understand it, is predicated on the idea that the old Board of Commissioners are entitled to go on and act as heretofore.

Mr. O'Conor—Yes, Sir.

The Judge—And that the appointments under the new law, because it is unconstitutional, are therefore void.

Mr. O'Conor—Yes, Sir.

The Judge—It does not appear to be a matter of moment which way the judgment is entered now, except in one point of view; and in that point of view it may be.

[illegible] on the contrary, that you will facilitate that proceeding. If your Honor determines that matter in favor, why we must go on Monday next before the General Term. The General Term will then have cognizance of this very motion which the learned counsel have seen fit to make in a manner somewhat earlier here. They have made a motion and fed the answer to it, and from your Honor's judgment upon it. If the General Term see fit to refuse to hear this matter for the reasons stated, then they will probably say so; but I apprehend the General Term will do no such thing. When the matter goes before the Court of Appeals they can hear the same matter, and they can determine whether there is any reason why they should not proceed to judgment for the sake of public peace, of public order and of good government. I have no more to say in relation to this particular motion than that I have something to say in relation to the case, if your Honor permits us to go on.

The Judge—I must exclude the question of collusion. I shall certainly assume that when the Attorney-General of the State, using the name of the people of the State, is on one side, and the Judge of one of the highest criminal tribunals in the City, by right of which he has acted as a Police Commissioner, is on the other, that although there may be a concert of action for certain purposes, there is no unlawful collusion. Certainly I shall not assume that there is, upon the evidence which has been furnished in these papers. The impeachment of the Attorney-General assumes that collusion on mere hearsay evidence, to which no opportunity has been furnished for an answer. But, as has been said, when this case goes up before the General Term it will be perfectly competent again to review these affidavits there with the view that they may be acted on at the discretion of the General Term. It is not a question of right as between the parties; it is a question for the Court, whether they will go on and hear a case under circumstances which are strictly speaking, not hostile. Now this code of which we are proceeding generally, though not in cases of mandamus, does contain, at all lawyers know, a provision which is somewhat in its spirit analogous to cases like this. It allows parties, when there is a question of difficulty—I read from the code—"when there is a question of difficulty," it allows parties, if that question of difficulty might be the subject of a civil action—or even without an action, so far as that goes, to agree upon a case containing the facts upon which the controversy depends, and to present a submission of the same to any Court which would have jurisdiction if an action had been brought. For undoubtedly it must appear by affidavit in that case that the controversy is real; that there is a real question between the parties; a real question involved in the case. That might be quashed somewhat by criticism. It must be a real question at all events, and the proceedings must be in good faith to determine the rights of the parties. And then it is made the duty, upon subsequent further proceedings, by complaint and answer, or any other form of that kind—by any of those technical proceedings—it is made the duty, I say, of the Court, without those formalities, to hear and determine the case at a general Term, and give a judgment therein as if an action were pending. I admit this case does not come within the letter of that provision; but the question is whether the spirit of that provision, if it was necessary at all to invoke it, would not apply to this case, supposing, I mean—(as I believe I am bound to suppose from all that is known of this case, and that we may consult its public history will not be denied)—assuming, I say, that it is a real bona fide question, in other words that it is rightly and sincerely entertained on one side as a matter of opinion—on one side at all events, and not very strongly, as we see here, controverted on the other—(it may be controverted, but it is not now at all events)—that the law under which this change is sought to be effected in the administration of the police department of this city is unconstitutional. If that be really a dubious question, a question upon which two minds might gravely doubt, and above all, if it be a question on which there is no doubt—if that be so, as counsel contend on the other side, for they don't seem to answer it—(I mean, if there be no doubt one way)—then I don't conceive how I could possibly suppose that the Attorney General is acting here collusively within the meaning of the law against collusion. I cannot. At all events I think I should be acting very disrespectfully to the public authorities were I to assume it in evidence before me. I shall assume that he is doing his duty according to his oath of office. I shall assume likewise that the defendant here, who for this purpose appears as a Police Commissioner ex officio, the City Judge, is likewise acting as he believes to be right under the oath which dictates his duty as a public officer. That being so the fair question being presented, I think it is my duty to pass upon it at all events, so that the three judges before whom the case is subsequently to be brought can review not only the main question but the incidental one.

Mr. O'Conor—I will say by way of reporter, to inform the Court, and in support of your Honor's statement, that it is altogether consistent with principle, as shown by that section of the code, for parties to stand in opposition upon an important question, to waive all forms and come most amicably into the Court and present that question for its judgment. I can state a case occurring under it.

The learned counsel stated at length the case of the New-York Art-Union, the law organizing which was found to be unconstitutional; and in regard to which the members composing the association amicably united with the then District-Attorney, (who, as he, Mr. O'Conor, sincerely believed, entertained at first the opinion that the Union was perfectly constitutional,) on a case raising nakedly and simply the constitutional issue, and, without any pleadings, presented it to the General Term for judgment. The Court gave its judgment, and the case then went to the Court of Appeals. That Court gave it the preference on the calendar; it was heard very early in the term. Judgment was rendered that the act of the Legislature was unconstitutional and void, and that institution ceased, he believed, to exist, at least in its then form. He only mentioned this fact as part of the current history, and his Honor, he believed, was familiar with the case.

Judge—It is within my memory; I think I wrote the opinion myself.

Mr. O'Connor—Yes; and your opinion was concurred in by the Court of Appeals. I was in the case. I acted for the Art Union. I promptly met the question, with their entire consent, and proceeded, without any possible delay, to have it determined at the earliest possible moment, even if it were to be determined against us. Now, Sir, in relation to this case, I am here on behalf of the people, to move for judgment. I only desire to expedite the proceedings, and it is for your Honor to determine whether you will render judgment for the plaintiff after hearing us, or whether, without hearing us, you will render a judgment pro forma against us, to the end that we may appeal, and bring the case regularly by appeal before the General Term. Of course you would not render a judgment on our hearing, without, perhaps, hearing some more argument. I don't know that all our points before the other justices have been pressed.

For my part it is my duty to move for judgment for the people. Your Honor has it in your discretion to give the decision either way. I perceive that the great constitutional case of the Warren Bridge vs. the St. Charles River Bridge went on a decision pro forma to the United States Supreme Court, and that was done in order to have it brought up there without further trouble.

The Judge thought the way to carry up the case must be to deny plaintiff's motion, and then let the plaintiff appeal. The appeal to the General Term could, he believed, only be taken in that way.

Mr. O'Conor—Then your Honor will, pro forma, deny the mandamus.

After some conversation between the Judge and counsel as to the surest mode of bringing the case properly and promptly before the General Term so that it might go to the Court of Appeals in June,

An order was entered, as intimated by the Judge, denying the mandamus pro formâ.

Mr. O'Conor then said he had another motion to make. He had found in this case that, instead of being called into Court to meet fairly on its merits the great constitutional question, they had to employ themselves in the examination, investigation and meeting of technical cavils and quibbles, for the purpose of delay. Among those which he had apprehended they might meet in this case, there arose a doubt (and it might be made unquestionable) as to the place at which a case in mandamus was to be heard for final judgment—whether it could be heard at a Special Term at all. In other words, he found, by referring to the code, that the writ of mandamus was, by the 471st section, excepted out of the operation of the whole of the second part of the code. And that being so, the power of a Special Term to hear such a case finally upon the merits and give judgment, was drawn into very great doubt. It was not necessary for him to say anything more than that. It was drawn into very great doubt, and if the Special Term had not power to hear it and give final judgment, why the judgment he (the Judge) had just now pronounced against his (counsel's) motion would be right for that reason, so that there was no inconsistency in the course that he (counsel) proposed to pursue. Now, under the instructions which he had received in this case, he proposed to move to his Honor at Special Term, upon the same facts and papers as in the other case, for a writ of mandamus returnable at the General Term on Monday next. This motion, after a renewed conversation, was granted, and the parties left the Court.

ARGUMENT OF MR. FIELD, BEFORE JUDGE PEABODY—THE CONSTITUTIONAL QUESTION REACHED.

The People ex rel Fernando Wood vs. Simeon Draper et al.—This case was continued yesterday afternoon. Mr. Field spoke for the Commissioners. The grounds of his defence were the granting of the injunction, which he claimed was in direct violation of a statute in this State, and the constitutionality of the law. He stated that he believed that there was no doubt of the constitutionality of the law, and had equal confidence of his ability to prove it, but this was doing more than he was bound to do. The plaintiffs, in taking upon themselves the proving of the unconstitutionality of the law, were bound to do so beyond all reasonable doubt. The act was to provide for the police force of our City. It was admitted that the Legislature had power to organize any military force to quell any riot, or for any specific purpose, and equally had they this right to provide for the peace of this City. He proceeded to analyze the arguments of his opponents. It was just as proper for the present defendants to be appointed Commissioners of Police, as for the Mayor, Recorder and City Judge to be installed into that position by the Legislature. If the one was not legal, the other [illegible] of Police were legally a City officer, [illegible] were the Judges of the Superior Court. He thought that the keeping of the peace was a duty devolving exclusively upon neither the City, county or town, but upon the whole State. The ideas, however, were the same as those advanced in his points published in yesterday's TIMES. He concluded by alluding to the growing evidence of the loosening of authority in the land, and the general feeling of contempt which is so frequently expressed in public.

It being signified that this was the close of the argument in the case, the Court was adjourned without date.

INJUNCTION AGAINST APPROPRIATING THE CITY MONEYS TO PROSECUTE THE RECENT INJUNCTIONS.

Judge BIRDSEYE, of the Brooklyn Supreme Court, yesterday issued the following injunction, on the application of Richard S. Roberts, of Brooklyn, restraining payment of the $10,000 voted by the Common Council to the Corporation Counsel for the purpose of procuring additional legal assistance in contesting the constitutionality of the recent acts of the Legislature with reference to the City of New-York:

SUPREME COURT, KINGS COUNTY.—Rich. S. Roberts vs. The Mayor, Aldermen and Commonalty of the City of New-York.—Injunction by order.—It appearing satisfactorily to me, by the affidavit of Richard S. Roberts, of the city of Brooklyn, the plaintiff, that sufficient grounds for an order of injunction exist, I do hereby order that the defendants, their officers and agents, refrain from paying out of the Treasury of the City of New-York, or out of any funds belonging to the defendants, the sum of $10,000, or any part thereof, appropriated by certain resolutions mentioned in the complaint herein, and in said affidavit, passed by the Board of Aldermen of the City of New-York, on or about the 27th day of April, 1857, and by the Board of Councilmen of the said City, on or about the 28th day of April, 1857, for or on account of any of the matters or purposes expressed in or contemplated by the said resolutions, until the further order of this Court, and in case of disobedience to this order, you will be liable to the punishment therefore, prescribed by law.—Dated Brooklyn, May 1, 1857. LUCIEN BIRDSEYE.

Comptroller Flagg had a copy of the injunction served upon him. He did not mind it much; in fact he was rather pleased with it, and will take no measures to have it set aside; [illegible] wishes it publicly understood that, while the City Treasury remains in its present depleted state, he [illegible] injunctions to be perpetually [illegible].

PARTIAL DEAFNESS AND DISCHARGES FROM THE EAR.—DR. HARTLEY, Principal Aurist, late proprietor of the Philadelphia Ear Institution, is now in New-York City, and generously offers to attend all persons suffering from affections of the Ear, without charge until cured, thereby proving his success unequaled, and protecting the deaf from being swindled by paying self-styled Aurists exorbitant fees in advance, and the infliction of still more serious evils, by permitting the application of dangerous remedies by inexperienced and unskillful hands. Dr. H. may here state, that he has no connection whatever with any person advertising to cure deafness. Neither has he given permission for the publication of a certificate, purporting to emanate from him, and cannot, therefore, be responsible for any alarming consequences resulting from rashness and desperation. The loss of money may not be material to some persons, but the deprivation of one of the most important of the senses ought to be regarded and treated with more than ordinary solicitude.

Deafness, noise in the head, and all disagreeable discharges from the ear, speedily and permanently removed, without causing the least pain or inconvenience. A cure in all cases guaranteed where malformation does not exist. Thirteen years close and almost undivided attention to this branch of special practice has enabled him to reduce his treatment to such a degree of success as to find the most confirmed and obstinate cases yield by a steady attention to the means prescribed. The destruction by fire of the Institution of which Dr. HARTLEY was the head having temporarily released him from his duties in Philadelphia, he will receive calls during each morning at No. 105 9th-st., near University Place.

PURDY'S NATIONAL THEATRE.—To-night an excellent performance will be given at this house, consisting of that sterling old Irish drama "Brian Boroihme," the national drama of "Karmel the Scout," with the pantomimes of "Mons. Dechalumeaux," intervening. This closes the present season, and on Monday commences the new, with the theatre repainted, rearranged, carpeted, upholstered and embellished both in interior and exterior. A new drop curtain, representing the Golden Horn, Constantinople, has also been painted by Mr. WILLIAMSON. A grand Eastern spectacle drama is to be produced in great splendor, entitled "Cleopatra; or, the Battle of Actium." So look out for fun at the National next week.

PICTURES ON THE RETINA OF THE EYE.

When Dr. BURDELL was murdered, it was suggested that the picture of the assassin might have been found photographed by nature upon the retina of his eye. It was too late, at that time, to scrape down the retina and examine it with a microscope. But the same wonderful depicturing of facts, produced by science, may be witnessed in the developments of the ingenious Sliding Cases, and the curiously adapted sketches just sent over here by the London Stereoscopic Company, and for sale by their agent, Mr. CUSSANS, at HALL's music store, corner of Broadway and Park-place. ☞ The only perfect Fountain Pen in the world. PRESTON'S PROTEAN FOUNTAIN PEN, N. Y.—A new and important improvement has been recently added to this invention, by which any writer can graduate the flow of ink. The fountain cases are warranted as incorrodible, and the points of the Gold Pens are warranted for one year.

This pen feeds itself with ink. PRESTON'S PROTEAN INK-FOUNTAIN PEN," is thus noticed in the New-Englander, by a reader that is, in itself, worth saying:

"We remember being consulted by the Professor of Rhetoric, in College, never, in writing, to arrest a free flow of thought, in order to look out a word in the dictionary, but to write on, and correct the diction afterwards. The reason assigned was, that a writer should take advantage of the concentration and glow of his mind, and not suffer it to become cooled and distracted while he investigates a question of language. For the same reason we prize "PRESTON'S Fountain Pen." It helps us to avail ourselves of the mind's best moods for composition. It is also an economist of time, soon repaying, by its saving in this respect, its original cost. A recent improvement has obviated our early objections to it, which arose from the insufficiency of the flow of ink. This difficulty no longer exists, the writer being able, by means of a new, ingenious contrivance, to regulate this flow at pleasure. No clergyman, we think, who gives it, as thus improved, a fair trial, could ever be induced to relinquish it; no man, indeed, whose literary or commercial pursuits require him to write hour after hour."

The public are invited to call and examine for themselves. Depôt, No. 200 Broadway, corner of Reade-street.

LONG ISLAND.

The Williamsburg Burglars.

Our Williamsburg neighbors are actively engaged in discussing the burglar question just now. There is a sort of periodical panic on the subject, when no man feels exactly safe, even under his own vine and fig tree. The fellows come, like the cholera, where they're least expected, glide through houses like spirits, regardless of bolts and bars, chloroform the dogs, pocket the revolvers, look after the watches and valuables, help themselves unceremoniously to all available matter, and glide out as noiselessly as they came in, without waiting for the denouement which generally takes place in the morning. They strike while the iron is hot; make several visits in succession, and then leave the inhabitants to rest for a season, till it suits them to levy fresh subsidies. They have been doing considerable business lately in a small way, which has not proved very profitable—not from any lack of good intentions on their part. On Sunday morning they entered the house of Mr. FERGUSON, in Eighth-street, and took a quantity of jewelry. On Sunday night they broke open a boot and shoe store in South Seventh-street, and stole about twenty dollars worth of boots and shoes; and also forced the door of Mr. HONSON's jewelry store in South Sixth-street, but failed to find anything of value. Several other burglaries have been committed in the same neighborhood within a few days and the police are on the track.
